Sharp German Teeth
Hot to Curb the U. S. A.
Spain Fights the Church
Shorter Day, Better Work
——By Arthur Brisbane——

TEETH, AND SHARP ONES, are in two decrees issued by President Von Hindenburg. Personal liberty, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and assembly, even the right to private property, that Germans thought would always be theirs, go overboard in this emergency.

Death and confiscation of property are the penalty for treason, incendiarism, damaging railroads, causing explosions, and other offenses hitherto punished with life imprisonment. Germany means to have peaceful reorganization, even if it should be necessary to kill off a few, in addition to millions killed in war.

German methods will be studied by those that feel responsible for conditions here. One merchant, owner of numerous stores, thinks "our capitalistic system may fail." It will not fail, as a matter of fact, because there is no system here to take its place that the country could approve.

In any case it would not fail without a fight, and the German methods of checking national disintegration interest us.

May we return peacefully to our old ways and our old prosperity. Yesterday Germany's dictatorship was not running smoothly, labor men opposing it, despite threats of death, troops firing on the mob, some killed, Social Democrats, hitherto Germany's balance wheel, and the Communists drawing together.

Statesmen of the British Empire, gathered at Ottawa to promote British prosperity, decide that Britons are to buy and sell among themselves, shutting out foreigners, and particularly the United States, as much as possible.

To cut down our export trade is the desire of England. Other nations have the same idea. Results show in fact that in June our exports fell below our imports.

That need not worry us, if we have intelligence. We have now what the English are trying to get, free trade within our empire, of 48 states. We can buy from each other up to the limit of our home demand, then dump our surplus among Britain's foreign customers, that can always be relied upon to buy at the lowest price.

As far as manufacturing is concerned, British competition in foreign markets would be a joke, if we put our minds on it. Ten workers in the United States produce as many automobile units as 100 workers in England, and our steel industry methods are as far ahead of the British as the locomotive is ahead of the stage coach.

There is no reason to worry. But we must do some thinking, and get over our mushy idea that our principal duty is to take care of other nations.

Commercial and industrial competition between this country, the British Empire and other nations will be intense for a while, and do good in the long run, improving methods, reaching economy, and eventually establishing the supremacy of the United States. This country has within its borders everything it needs, except spices and rubber, and can produce them if necessary.

In Spain warfare against the Catholic Church proceeds with increasing bitterness. The Vatican offers no active opposition to the expulsion of the Jesuits, hoping that anti-clerical activity would diminish.

Now the Spanish republic proposes to curtail in every way the activities of 80,000 Spanish monks and nuns, hitherto engaged largely in teaching. Spanish deputies say, "There seems to be nothing ahead of the monks and nuns but lives of meditation."

Events in Spain show what can be done by a minority powerfully organized and resolute. Spain's Republican-Socialist government has its way, although the masses of Spanish people are, overwhelmingly, devout Catholics.

Some news is cheerful. The India Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, O., increases wages 20 per cent to make up for a similar cut in January. Employees were told that if they made the concern profitable, wages would come back. They did it, working six hours a day, seven days a week. The management says the increased leisure, freedom from story monotony enjoyed by the men, accounts for an unusual production record.

Other employers might consider that. The five-day week, demanded by the Federation of Labor, with an eight or even six-hour day, if capacity of machinery should make it necessary, may be found as productive in the long run as the old long week and day, with tired workers.

War does not pay—that has been proved. Having your neighbors in trouble, also does not pay. Japan, with her Chi-

ELY AGREES TO CONFER WITH ROOSEVELT

Bay State Governor, Pre-Convention Smith Leader, Going to Albany Next Month

Springfield, July 22 (AP)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely, leader of the pre-convention anti-Roosevelt forces in Massachusetts, agreed today in a two-hour conference with James A. Farley, Roosevelt campaign manager, to meet the Democratic presidential nominee in Albany next week.

In a statement issued at the close of the conference, Farley said:

"Gov. Ely and I have gone over the situation very carefully and I have arranged for Gov. Ely to meet Gov. Roosevelt in Albany some day next week, and after that visit Gov. Ely will issue a statement."

ACCORD IMMINENT

Farley declined to amplify that statement and Gov. Ely made no comment whatever. However, it appeared that an accord between Gov. Ely and the Roosevelt forces was imminent. Farley, in Gov. Ely's presence, read to newspapermen a statement in which he said:

"I am satisfied the New England States will give to Gov. Roosevelt their whole-hearted support, and we look for an entirely satisfactory result in every State."

Gov. Ely grinned but said nothing.

The two political leaders then chatted some time with the press. The talk turned to golf.

"You ought to hit 'em pretty far, Jim," Gov. Ely said as he glanced approvingly at Farley's massive figure.

"I'm not hitting them at all these days," Farley said.

ELY RETURNS TO HOME

During the conference Farley was interrupted frequently by telephone calls from his lieutenants in New York. He barked orders and, during a second's hesitation, directing his far-flung Democratic aids.

Regarding the national campaign, Farley said the only definite appearance so far scheduled for Gov. Roosevelt was for Governor's Day, Aug. 27, at Seagrave, N. J.

Gov. Ely, returning to his home in Westfield, said he had decided not to attend a meeting of western Massachusetts Democrats here tonight. He had been tentatively scheduled as a speaker

DUNHAM JAIL SHIFT COST WIFE $1000

Second Bride of Candy Man Says She'll Give Him "Everything"

Salem, July 22—Declaration that she paid Representative Francis E. Rafter of Salem $1000 to have her husband, Otis Emerson Dunham, transferred from Charles st jail to the prison farm at Middleton, was made today in Probate Court by Mrs. Alice Crehan Dunham.

The second wife of the former candy manufacturer was testifying for Dunham in the contempt of court proceedings brought against him by his first wife, Mrs. Mina Dunham, for alleged failure to pay for support of 16-year-old Shirley Dunham, a daughter of the first marriage.

Under questioning by Atty. Fred Cloutman, counsel for the first wife, Mrs. Dunham the second admitted the Henry Y. Porter who purchased the Dunham estate "Lodge Pole Ranch" in Beverly, purchased it for her because she wanted to retain the estate for herself and Dunham when he is released from jail September 5.

She has spent $9000 of her own money in Dunham's interest, she declared.

"I will give him every penny I've got, but not a cent for Shirley," she said.

Mrs. Dunham testified she paid expenses of the funeral of Dunham's mother and paid most of his trial expenses, in addition to paying Rep. Rafter $1000 to obtain Dunham's transfer.

Following her testimony, Judge White said he must hold Dunham in default.

Harbor Obstruction Removed by U.S. Men

A coast guard cutter today removed from the North ship channel a dangerous obstruction to navigation, a raft, 35 feet long and 15 feet wide, believed to be part of a dredge that sank in Lynn harbor last year.

Made up of 12-inch timbers, it was sighted by Capt. Di Palma of the inbound collier William M. Page, for Boston from Norfolk. Di Palma notified the hydrographic office. The cutter towed the rat to Base 5, East Boston.

1 Dead, 1 Jailed in Old-Time Gun Fight

West Frankfort, Ill., July 22 (INS)—In a gun battle reminiscent of the old west, William Logan, 35, was shot and killed today. William Cagle, 37, was arrested.

Logan and Cagle, according to police, quarreled. Cagle learned Logan was out "gunning" for him. He obtained a shotgun and the men met face to face. Cagle beat Logan to the draw and the latter fell with a full charge in his head.

DAUGHTER OF BOSTON BANK MAN VICTIM OF TRAGEDY

Bodies of Two Others in Death Mysteries Found Near-by in Minnesota

Miss Agnes Stevens, 23, auburn-haired daughter of a Boston banker and member of one of the wealthiest families in Melrose, was found shot to death in a Minnesota town today, a few hours after two other girls had been found slain nearby.

She was a student at the University of Minnesota and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Stevens of 51 Poplar st., Melrose. Her father is assistant cashier of the Old Colony Trust Company.

Whether she had been slain or was a suicide and whether her death was in any way connected with the murder of the other two girls, both residents of Rochester, Minn., was not immediately established, but a wave of terror swept the Zumbro River region near Lake City, where the triple tragedy occurred.

DEAD IN OWN AUTO

Boston authorities were asked to join with Minnesota State police and university authorities in the investigation.

Miss Stevens, who attended the University of Minnesota last year and only yesterday enrolled for the summer school classes, attended a party last night in North St. Paul, where she roomed.

Today her body was found in the woods of Red Wing, a suburb of Lake City, 30 miles from the university.

She was seated at the wheel of her own car and there was a bullet in her heart.

Her left hand rested on the wheel of the car and her right clutched an automatic pistol. On her left hand was a speck of blood and on her nose was another.

She was attired in a white jacket and yellow skirt. In a pocket of the jacket was a small notebook in which was her name. There was no suicide note. On the other hand, there was no evidence of any struggle.

The car had been parked in a wooded area near the slow-flowing Zumbro.

TWO OTHER BODIES FOUND

Nearby, a few hours previous, woodsmen had come upon the scantily clad bodies of Miss Louise Prigge and Miss Frances Polikawski, 23-year-old Rochester farm

VICTIM DYING OF HICCOUGHS

Hope waned today in the battle to save the life of Phillip Dougherty, 37, of Franklin st., Cambridge, a victim of hiccoughs for the past 11 days, following an operation at the Cambridge City Hospital.

A relapse following a slight relief, brought the victim's condition to a critical point today and his name was placed on the danger list. Hospital authorities expressed no grea thope in their battle to save his life.

Dougherty was operated upon at the hospital for a hernia. Shortly after the operation, he was seized with a hiccoughing attack. He has been a constant victim since. Every known means within the power of medical science has been used in the battle to save his life.

Ryan Mills Reopen With 100 Extra Help

Fall River, July 22 (AP)—The United Rayon mills resumed operation today after a four weeks' period of idleness, with a force of 200 workers, an increase of 100 over the number employed when the mills were closed.

The management said that several large orders have been received, that additional ones are expected and that by the middle of next week it expects to be working at capacity with 450 hands.

CHEVALIER SUES FOR DIVORCE

Paris, July 22 (INS)—Maurice Chevalier, motion picture star, today filed suit for divorce from Yvonne Vallee, the French actress.

He seeks the divorce on grounds of incompatibility, according to the papers in his suit.

Chevalier arrived here only a few days ago from the United States, where he declared he was merely visiting Paris and his villa at Juan Les Pins "for a rest and a vacation."

Chevalier and Miss Vallee were married Oct. 10, 1927, in a little church near St. Cloud—before he had acquired his fame in talking pictures.

At the time, both he and his wife were well-known in Paris for their performances at the Casino de Paris and at the Palace Theater.

They planned then to live at a villa named after one of their most famous songs, "Quand on est deux."

Chevalier was even then well-known to thousands of American tourists who had witnessed his performances, and at that early date American vaudeville producers had made efforts to introduce him in the United States.

MAN PARALYZED BY BUG'S BITE

An unknown insect, whose bite causes complete paralysis for a time, followed by temporary blindness and a scarlet rash, is flying about Greater Boston orchards.

Scientists have been unable to classify the flying bug, but are anxious to catch it—or one of them—for study.

The first victim, William F. Keith, 50, of 209 Central st., Saxonville, who was bitten on the lip while spraying trees in his orchard.

His lip began to swell and he became dizzy. As he reached the office of Dr. Christopher J. Carr, his hands and arms, then his legs became paralyzed and he dropped unconscious.

After 20 minutes he came to, but was blind. When his eyesight returned a brilliant rash broke out all over his body. After a complete rest he recovered fully.

Dr. Harold W. Stephens, head of the communicable disease division of the State Department of Health, said it was possible Keith had suffered a shock from the alarm of being bitten, causing him to lose control of his faculties.

Dr. Stephens said that auto drivers sometimes suffer such a loss of orientation when taung by a bee, causing them to lose complete control of their machines.

ENGINEER KILLS SELF IN NEWTON

Ernest G. Hodgkins, 50, of Athelstone rd., Newton Center, a refrigerating engineer, was found a suicide today in a clearing in the woods near Elinor rd., Newton Highlands. He had shot himself through the mouth. A gun lay beside him.

Mrs. Rebecca Standish of Walnut st., walking with her dog, found his body on the ground beside his parked auto.

Hodgkins was head of the U-Save Corp. of Parlin st., Everett, and previously had been associated with another refrigerating venture which had failed. He had not been home since Wednesday and his disappearance was reported to police last night by his wife, Mrs. Harriet Hodgkins.

Yesterday boys saw the body but believed it was a sleeping man.

Hultman Is Too Busy to Sign; Headquarters Payless

Today was pay day in the police department—but not for police attached to headquarters, which made them somewhat indignant.

Although cash accrued to all other branches of the department, the paymaster failed tos how up at the usual time, and then investigators learned he wouldn't show up at all.

The reason, it was discovered, was that Commissioner Hultman was so busy attending a Mattapan dedication and a meeting here and a meeting there that he didn't get around to signing the headquarters payroll until too late for action today.

Many of the headquarters officers headed for City Hall to see if they could draw their pay at the city treasurer's office while the more affluent ones resigned themselves to waiting until tomorrow.

TWO PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN DECISIONS AWAITED

HOOVER STAND ON DRY LAW PUZZLING

Extent of Roosevelt's Bid for Eastern Votes So Far Undetermined

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The rapid pace of the presidential campaign is forcing toward decision these two highly intergsting and possibly dominating questions of party strategy:

I—How far will the Republicans go toward an affirmative bid for the prohibition vote?

II—How far will the Democrats go in seeking the support of the West at the sacrifice of certain strength in the East?

For the answer to the first question, the country is looking to President Hoover's acceptance speech Aug. 11. As he begins its preparation, he is besieged on the one hand by plans that he show a definite personal inclination to the dry side, at the same time that he accept the submission plank adopted at Chicago; and on the other hand by advisers who think the party ought to cut loose entirely from the organized drys and stand for submission and nothing else.

HOOVER SHUNS REPEAL

It probably is true that not one of the President's intimates knows today what he will decide to say. He is listening to both sides, and keeping his own thoughts to himself. All that can be said with certainty is that he has no intention of declaring for repeal, or even by inferences putting himself definitely on the extreme anti-prohibition side of the case.

Similarly, many politicians expect, Gov. Roosevelt to indicate whether he intends to follow the strategy adopted by his running mate, Speaker Garner, in the closing days of the session of Congress and in the home-coming speeches in Texas.

Garner's thrusts at "Wall Street," and his denunciation of President Hoover as the special friend of big business, have aroused questions among many eastern Democrats. Already Republican speakers have sought to attach the tag of "radical" to the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, and have used the utterances of the Democratic Vice President nominee in the hope of frightening the East.

EASTERN VOTES SOUGHT

Only indirectly has Gov. Roosevelt indicated what his views as to political geography are. By his conferences with Massachusetts Democrats, and by his assignment to Chairman James A. Farley into New Jersey on a peace-making session, a nominee has shown he has no intention of waging a campaign aimed solely at Southern and Western electoral votes.

Much higher interest attaches, however, to what the Governor actually says in his future addresses and whether Speaker Garner, after his fishing trip, resumes his speech-making where he left off.

Farley's New Jersey speech did not touch the big business issue. It was an appeal for party harmony, addressed not alone to the Hague organization in New Jersey, its complimentary references to John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse were calculated to reach the ears of those in all states who stood against Roosevelt's nomination.

It will be on the state leaders, more than usual, that the Democratic campaign will rest under a plan of decentralized management worked out at Albany.

ST. LAWRENCE TREATY

Another question still to be decided is whether the Democrats will make a concerted attack on the St. Lawrence waterway treaty signed this week in Washington. Governor Roosevelt has indicated a feeling that the interests of New York state were not sufficiently considered by the administration in Washington, and there are rumblings of dissent among some western senators. The form of this treaty may become an important campaign issue, but the situation is still too nebulous for definite prediction.

That the governor intends to do something about the waterpower issue, from the St. Lawrence angle or some other, is indicated by the conferences he has been holding with his home state advisers. He also has gone into the farm relief situation, coupled by some with the water power question, in talks with farm bureau federation officials, but the results appear indefinite.

DAKOTA IS OUT FOR ALL IT CAN GET IN U. S. AID

Governor Doesn't Know What It Will Be Used for, but Will Ask Relief Anyway

Pierre S. D., July 22 (AP)—South Dakota will asks for "all we can get which can be used to advantage" from the $300,000,000 relief fund provided by the federal government, Gov. Green said today.

Wilson Says Vermont Will Seek Federal Relief

Montpelier, Vt., July 22 (AP)—Governor Wilson today denied published reports that the state had decided not to borrow money under the federal relief bill. He said no decision would be made until provisions of the bill have been studied. While Vermont opposed federal relief for states last year, it was announced at the time that if such relief were granted, Vermont, contributing through taxation, would expect its share.

Maine Will Ask U. S. Loan to Assist Its Towns

Augusta, July 22 (AP)—Gov. Gardiner said today that while Maine apparently is going to be able to get along without a loan from the government, it may be necessary for the state to borrow some money to be re-loaned to municipalities which are having financial difficulties.

Several towns and some cities have asked for help. Some have reached their debt limits. Most attribute their troubles to the unusually large number of relief cases and to loss of tax revenue.

Mgr. Supple was stricken while on his way home from the Eucharistic Congress in Ireland several weeks ago.

BEEDY IN A NEW DRIVE ON RUM

Washington, July 22 (INS)—A body blow at what he called "wet ballyhoo" was struck today by Rep. Beedy (R) of Maine, House dry leader, Beedy, basing his statement on new data received from official and accepted figures, hit hard at the argument that the repeal of prohibition would provide a new outlet for cereal grains, put millions to work, and greatly ease the present tax burden.

The figures quoted by Beedy, compiled by Samuel S. Wyer, engineer and statistician for the Columbus, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce, have been furnished only to him and to Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, in charge of prohibition enforcement.

BONUS SEEKERS DEFY ORDERS TO GET OUT

Riots Feared as Vets Unite to Fight Police on Edict; 'Won't Leave,' Says Leader

Washington, July 22 (INS)—The spirit of co-operation and friendship between the bonus army and Washington police, which has existed since the marchers first entered the District of Columbia, was dissolved today.

A passive state of war existed following announcement by police they were ready to carry out the command of district commissioners to evacuate the army by August 4, and the firm declaration by Comdr. Walter W. Waters of the bonus army that his forces came here to stay and have no idea of leaving, order or no order.

It was admittedly a ticklish situation, and one which officials feared might precipitate trouble of a serious nature.

TEST COMES TODAY

A sort of "test case" will be afforded today. Federal buildings on lower Pennsylvania ave. have been ordered evacuated by midnight. The order came several hours before the marchers were told they must leave by August 4, and they received this passively, declaring they would "co-operate" with police. The later blanket order completely changed the complexion of things, however. There are many among the marchers who advocate defiance even of the first order, to clear out of the quarters taken over by the veterans.

Police were close mouthed about the situation. They would say only that the district commissioners had ordered evacuation, and that they are ready to carry out orders.

ORDER UNITES FACTIONS

The evacuation order has had one disastrous effect from the standpoint of officials already. Prior to the order, internal trouble which developed days ago was sending hundreds of veterans home, feeling that their fight was a hopeless one.

Now the opposing factions have forgotten their differences. Some of the old internal strife still rankled a little, but was placed far below a common joining for the defense of the veterans' camp. Waters expressed the general sentiment of the marchers when he replied to the evacuation order. He said:

"Certainly, they can order us out of the district. But, how can they enforce this order?"

Congratulatory Messages Rouse Mrs. Roosevelt

Brookiyn, Ct., July 22—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late President, expressed herself as "weary" today after receiving messages congratulating her on the nomination of her husband as the Democratic presidential candidate.

She stated that she has received more than 300 messages from people in all parts of the country who are under the impression that the Democratic nominee, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, is the late Republican president.

DU PONT GROUP BACKS REPEAL

Washington, July 22 (INS)—Unqualified endorsement of the anti-prohibition plank in the Democratic platform was given today by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the association, however, failed to refer to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt or Speaker John N. Garner, who head the Democratic national ticket and who have endorsed the "wet" plank.

The statement of the organization, given over the signature of Pierre S. duPont, chairman of its executive committee, says:

"The Democratic platform is clean cut and supports the aims of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Therefore we should find in the Democratic party those candidates who will propose and recommend repeal without qualification.

"While the Republican platform does not meet our views, it must be remembered that 40 per cent of the delegates to the Republican convention voted for submission of repeal. Therefore, we should also find in the Republican party candidates who will likewise propose and recommend repeal without qualification."

A week ago the betting on the same floor was even money.

Odds yesterday were five to four on Roosevelt, with no takers of the Hoover ends. One broker, who placed $500 last week on New York's Governor against a like amount on Hoover, offered $2400 on Roosevelt at five to four yesterday and found no takers.

ROOSEVELT AND YOUNG TO MEET

"Will you discuss debt cancellation?" the Governor was asked.

"We will talk about general international relations," he replied.

Young has been mentioned for a cabinet place.

H., July 22 (AP)—Beneath a collection of old furniture customs inspectors who stopped a truck near the Maine-New Hampshire State line today found 180 cases of fancy liquors which they valued at $10,000. They arrested the driver, who gave his name as James H. Keaney of River st., Arlington, Mass.

The liquor included champagne, whiskey and high grade alcohol. The inspectors were watching for another truck near the line between Wells and Kennebunk when the load of furniture appeared. They stopped the truck and the search disclosed the liquor hidden beneath the household goods.

BULLETIN

Wick, Scotland, July 22 (AP)—At 8:40 a. m. E. S. T. Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau, flying from Germany to Chicago by way of Iceland, reported his position as 58 degrees 30 minutes north latitude and 2 degrees 15 minutes west longitude, just east of the Orkney Islands.

He was accompanied in his seaplane, known as the Greenland Wal, by a crew of three, including a second pilot, a mechanic and radio operator. His route will be substantially the same as that followed in his two previous flights in 1930 and 1931, by way of Iceland, Greenland and Labrador.

His first stop was planned for Iceland.

French, Italian Envoys NearBlows, DuelLooms

Geneva, July 22 (INS)—A session of the Interparliamentary Union was thrown into a furore today by a French attack upon Italian Fascism which halted the conference and drew a strong reprimand from the secretariat of the League of Nations.

All Geneva including delegates to the world disarmament conference, awaited developments apprehensively as the sensational incident assumed great proportions with the refusal of warring French and Italian delegates to retract bitter statements against each other, and standing firmly behind their deputies.

The clash occurred following a speech by Antonio Costamagna, Italian deputy, on international law in connection with the Fascist regime in Italy.

NEAR TO BLOWS

Pierre Renaudel, French deputy, arose and shouted across the hall:

"What do you know about international law? You Fascists do not know the meaning of law or liberty. Down with you assassins!"

At this point Costamagna jumped up and rushed toward the Frenchman in an attempt to strike him, but others intervened and the session recessed amid great confusion.

Possibility of a duel between the two men loomed as each steadfastly refused to apologize.

Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and head of his country's delegation to the disarmament conference, rushed from the arms parley and instructed the Italian interparliamentary delegation not to participate in the conference any further unless the French retracted accusations.

The interparliamentary council went into special session to decide its procedure. It was forced to adjourn without reaching a decision. It left the matter to be taken up at the "presidium," a body of seven leading officials, at a meeting later today.

LEAGUE BARS THEM

Sir Eric Drummond secretary of the League of Nations, was highly incensed over the dramatic incident, as were other League officials. He informed the Interparliamentary Union it could not hold any more meetings in League buildings unless definite assurance of strict order were forthcoming.

Regarding the duel, Balbo said this was a personal matter which Costamgna could "settle in his own way."

"When Costamagna used the word 'justice' it was too much for me," Renaudel said. "Everyone knows justice does not exist where liberty does not exist.

"The country which does not believe in parliamentary rule has no business to attend such conferences."

SEN. JOHNSON HITS CONGRESS

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Senator Hiram Johnson of California stopped off in Chicago today long enough to say that "more things were done in the last session of Congress and with less knowledge than ever before."

The California Republican replied, "I am not talking politics," when asked who he would support in the presidential campaign.

He said, however, that he was greatly impressed with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's flight to Chicago to accept the Democratic nomination before the convention closed.

He said that one of the troubles in Congress was "the whispering about terrible things that might be going to happen, those in power spending most of their time in trying to frighten the legislative branch of the government."

If Hoover Backs Plank, Borah Bolts

Washington, July 22 (INS)—"If the President endorses the platform, my attitude will require no further elaboration," Senator Borah said today.

The California Republican, who was President Hoover's chief campaigner four years ago, declared in the Senate last month he would not support Mr. Hoover if he endorses the Republican platform's wet plank, which declares the individual states should be permitted to decide the prohibition question.

nese war worries and her financial troubles at home, disturbs important interests by selling copper at 4.55 a pound, reducing copper prices everywhere in Europe. Even South Africa will find it hard to compete with such price-cutting.

M. H. Karker writes to his stockholders in the Jewel Tea Co. that high taxes will cause confiscation of property, unless something is done to stop city, state and national extravagance. A little while ago, the national government spent less than one billion a year. It will spend four thousand seven hundred and fifty millions this year. National, state and local government expenses increased 347 per cent between 1923 and 1929, while the national income increased only 148 per cent, and population only 26 per cent. No wonder Mr. Karker worries, but he need not WONDER.

The citizens of this nation have concentrated intensely on their own individual enterprises, from a new fall overcoat to a new radio, and have paid little attention to their government except to vote perfunctorily, nearly half of them neglecting that.

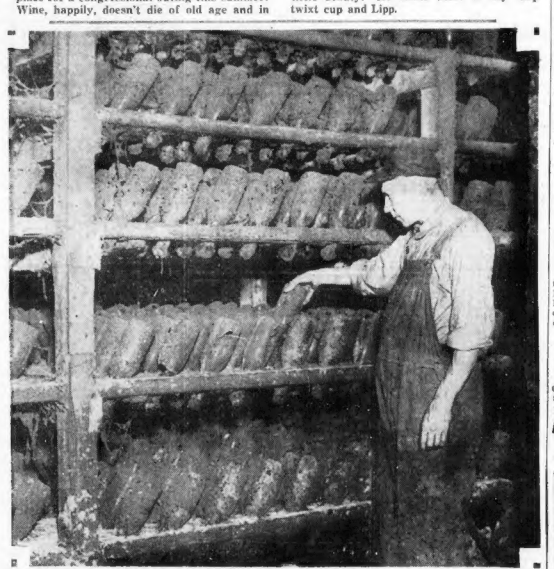
A PARADISE LAW KEEPS LOCKED

Third Degree Witness Threatens to 'Get' Police Who Beat Him

More than 250,000 gallons of choice wines and champagne are aging in the Hommel wine cellar under a Sandusky, O., street, awaiting the repeal of prohibition. What a marvelous place for a congressional outing this summer! Wine, happily, doesn't die of old age and in this cask are 6000 gallons or 24,000 quarts, or enough for all congressmen laid end to end, snoring louder than usual. Jake Lipp, watchman, on a 10-foot ladder, inspects his little beauty. He denies there is any slip twixt cup and Lipp.



And here is Jake inspecting a few thousand of 1,000,000 bottles of champagne in the Hommel wine cellar. The dust and cobwebs of the ancient tombs have gathered here where only the spiders and the watchman have access. Jake's job is to turn the bottles so the champagne will age correctly. When he has turned 1,000,000 bottles it is time to start all over again. Nobody knows what he pays for the privilege of working here, but you will notice a small army of dead soldiers helping him keep guard. (International News Photos.)

SLAPS OFFICERS HE IDENTIFIES IN KILLING

Court Rebukes a Detective for "Threat"; Grand Jury Gets New Evidence

Mineola, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Alexander Dragnel, former co-prisoner of Hyman Stark, third degree victim, swaggered handcuffed and sneering into the grany jury room today and refused to testify until he had consulted his lawyer.

Dragnel, who was arrested with Stark and two other East Side, New York, youths for beating up the mother of a detective, was an important witness at the John Doe hearing which resulted in 13 members of the county police force being held for grand jury action in connection with Stark's death.

THREATENS POLICE

From a lineup of police at the John Doe hearing Dragnel picked out the men he said had beaten him and his companions, accompanying each identification with a blow on the chest that rocked the policemen on their heels.

He voiced open threats against several of them and was especially vindictive in his remarks to Detective Marcel Chagnon, one of the men subsequently held for the grand jury.

Every time he came near Chagnon he snarled:

"I'd like to knock your block off."

Chagnon took no notice until Dragnel was leaving the court room. Then he waved a hand and was understood by some to say, "Goodby, sweetheart," to the prisoner.

REPRIMANDS DETECTIVE

Justice Meier Steinbrink interpreted this action as a threat on the part of the detective and reprimanded him sharply. On the witness stand later Chagnon said he had not been making a threat but "acknowledging one."

Today Dragnel was led into the grand jury room, passing through a courthouse corridor in which he passed numerous police officers, at all of whom he openly sneered. He refused to give any evidence until he had conferred with Samuel Liebowitz, his lawyer. Liebowitz was reached by telephone and said he would come to Mineola from New York at once.

Fifteen witnesses were heard by the grand jurors today, all policemen. The accused policemen did not testify, by advice of counsel, but depositions obtained from them were read.

ANOTHER BEATING CASE

Since Stark died charges have been made that Michael Chirillo, a youth arrested on an assault charge by one of the detectives accused of beating Stark, was also beaten by police. Chirillo asserted last night that he was beaten in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton, Jr., who was the chief witness against the police in the John Doe hearing into the Stark death.

Littleton declined to comment on the Chirillo allegations today, but Inspectors Frank King, who said he was present when Chirillo was questioned, asserted that the prisoner merely suffered from hysteria.

"When he was told what the charge against him was and how serious it was and what the penalty might be," King said, "he just went all to pieces."

CHAINED GIRL SLAVE FREE

A story of almost unbelievable cruelty was brought to light when Lena Persiana, 12, thin and emaciated, told Judge Pancoast in Camden, N. J., how her father bound her legs with chains so she would not run away. He would wake her at 5 a. m. After doing the chores she would go to school. After school came more housework and then she would be put to work painting lampshades until 2 a. m. The girl's legs showed bruises of the chains which had been put on her nightly for two years. (International) (News Photos.)

GIRL IN CHAINS FOR 2 YEARS

Camden, N. J., July 22—A 12-year-old girl, cruelly emaciated and terrified, told a court here how her father kept her legs bound in padlocked chains and forced her to make lamp shades for him to sell.

The atrocious treatment of the girl was admitted by the father, Anthony Persiana. He said he had to chain his daughter so tightly her legs were cut because "she always runs away."

"I only run away because they put chains around my leg," the girl answered. "They've been chaining me two years."

"I had to use the chains because the court some time ago said I couldn't whip my daughter," the father calmly explained.

Lena, the slave girl, was so weak from lack of nourishment that she fainted during the hearing. Her mother sided with the father in the case.

GIRL, MAN HELD IN POOL CASE

Charged with setting up and promoting a lottery, Anthony J. DeAndrade of Fairfax st., Somerville, was arraigned today in municipal court, the result of a drive by police of the Back Bay and South End on lotteries.

Miss Edna E. Young of Grant st., Allston, charged with having sold a lottery ticket to a policeman, was also arraigned and both cases were continued for one week for a hearing. The couple were arrested yesterday in a raid on a Tremont st. office where Sergt. Edward J. Keating and Special Officers John McCarthy and Leo O'Neill seized 40,000 tickets of a lottery in connection with a sports carnival declared to be scheduled for Braves Field next month.

According to the tickets, 498 prizes with a total value of $150,000 were to be awarded.

TORCH SINGER'S UNBORN CHILD IS A FIGURE

New York Attorney Claims He Has Been Named Executor; $15,000,000 Is at Stake

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 22 (INS)—The first step in the litigation over the estate of Zachary Smith Reynolds, the youthful heir to $15,000,000 who was fatally shot on his sleeping porch, appeared to have developed today.

A letter was received from a New York law firm by W. N. Reynolds, uncle and guardian of the 20-year-old boy. The communication asserted that a member of the firm had been appointed an executor of the Smith Reynolds estate.

It was assumed that the law firm was representing Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway singing star and widow of Smith Reynolds.

SINGER IN SECLUSION

Mrs. Reynolds has been in seclusion with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holman, in Cincinnati. She left the palatial Reynolds estate here immediately after a coroner's jury had brought in a verdict that young Reynolds came to his death at the hands of a person or persons unknown.

The personal property of young Reynolds has been estimated at approximately $250,000.

However, this sum is comparatively insignificant when it is considered that he would have inherited at least $15,000,000 at the age of 28 under the terms of the will of his father, Richard J. Reynolds.

More than $60,000,000 has been held in trust for the four children of the elder Reynolds by the Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore.

While most legal experts here believe that Mrs. Reynolds will have no difficulty in her claim to dower rights, they have a different opinion as to her chances to participate in her husband's share of his father's fortune.

LIBBY EXPECTS CHILD

There is a potential additional complication in the event that there is a child. Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds, during her dramatic testimony at the inquest into the death of her husband, declared she believed she was soon to become a mother.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Transou Scott, quietly gathering new evidence in his investigation of the shooting, awaited the return of Smith's brother, Richard, who is expected Saturday or Sunday.

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—Two men who attempted to assassinate Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, in April, were sentenced to 10 months imprisonment today.

They fired at Dr. Luther as he boarded a train. He was only slightly wounded.

SWOPE SCION TO WED DIVORCEE

The engagement of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Burr, Salem beauty and society leader, whose divorce from Lemuel G. Burr of New York becomes absolute today, to Isaac G. Swope, oldest son of Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric Company, was announced today.

Although friends of the couple have been aware that they planned to wed, Mrs. Burr refused to allow the announcement to be made until her decree was made absolute today.

The formal announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. Leverett S. Tuckerman, of Essex st., Salem, at whose home the wedding will take place on Saturday, July 30.

SOREE-EE-EE, THE LINE IS BIZEE-EE-EE

It looks as though the line were going to be busy for some time while Suzie makes a date with the boy friend. The swanky chimpanzee is the pet of Mrs. Wood Kahler, wife of the American writer, who acquired her two years ago in French Africa. Suzie is now four years old and speaks only French.

APE-ING HER BETTERS

Just to show how well versed she is in drawing-room manners, Suzie pours herself a cup of tea as she prepares to tell something of her romantic past in the jungles of French Africa. But you'll have to understand French if you want to follow the story, for that's the only language Suzie knows.

SOUNDING THE "KEY"—IN MONKEY

Suzie plays some hot tunes straight from the jungle. Mrs. Kahler is Russian, but she has to speak to Suzie in French. The simian is said to possess manners that would cause Emily Post to beam with delight. She rode first-class to the U. S. on the liner Mauretania.

50 ESCAPE IN FT. DEVENS FIRE

Fort Devens, Ayer, July 22—Fire starting shortly before 8 o'clock this morning destroyed the barracks occupied by the 102d Motor Transport Company (Woburn) of the 26th Division, M. N. G.

The 50 men housed in the barracks fled to safety, but so rapidly did the flames spread through the old wooden two-story structure that the company lost about half of its official and personal property.

Royalists Haggle Over Skeletons

Vienna, July 22—Austrian and French royalists were dickering today over a unique barter involving two royal skeletons.

French royalists have demanded that Austria give up the remains of the Duke of Reichstadt, Napoleon's son, buried here.

The Austrians ask the return of the skeleton of former King Karl, buried in Madeira, and demand the French intervene with the Portuguese government.

$435,000 MORE ASKED FOR 'L'

The last step to finance extension of the Boston Elevated Control Act for 28 years came today when the State Public Utilities Commission was asked by the Boston metropolitan district to approve a $435,000 note issue. This will be used to retire preferred stock, in addition to a $23,000,000 bond issue recently approved.

A previous attempt of metropolitan district trustees to obtain bids on a loan for the final amount necessary for the extension was unsuccessful but they later obtained two bids and expect to raise the money at 4½ per cent.

U.S. TRADE WITH CANADA HANGS IN BALANCE

The tinseled preliminaries ended, the Imperial economic conference settled down today to the log-rolling business of trying to envolve a formlua for a preferential tariff agreement between the conflicting parts of the British Empire.

They have tried it before—and failed.

If they succeed this time it bodes ill for American business, for the British empire is America's best customer.

Before the conference today was Canada's bold proposition for a system of preferential tariffs within the empire that is distinctly scary to American business.

The Canadian premier, Richard B. Bennett, who coasted into power two years ago on the crest of a wave of Canadian resentment against the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, proposed that the Dominion free list be extended to the United Kingdom, that existing preferences be retained in favor of Great Britain, and that increased preferences be granted to a "selected list" of articles which Britain "is especially equipped to supply the Canadian market without injuring efficient Canadian enterprises."

WOULD KEEP OLD FAVORS

In return for this, Canada asked the mother country to retain existing preferences for Canadian goods, and in addition to extend them to all other goods, natural and manufactured, which England now imports in great quantities from non-empire countries.

Bennett's proposal was addressed principally to Great Britain, but he said it is equally applicable to all other parts of the empire where it might prove "mutually advantageous."

Today the conference split up into committees to study the Bennett proposal—behind closed doors. It is behind these closed doors that the history of this conference will be written in the weeks to come. And the probability is that there will be some extremely plain talking.

BALDWIN ON SPOT

The Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the British delegation, might be said to have been "put on the spot" in this conference. It was whispered today that he had not seen Premier Bennett's speech yesterday before its delivery; that he was caught unaware by its forthrightness.

As it was, the former British premier reminded the conference that "we cannot isolate ourselves from the world."

Dr. Harold A. Gale of Winchester Dead

N. H. Beauty Dies

MISS AMERICA OF N. H. DEAD

Orlando, Fla., July 22—Miss Margaret Ekdahl, 21, named as Miss America in a 1930 beauty contest at Miami is dead in a hospital here, the victim of peritonitis, following an appendicitis operation.

The blonde beauty, a native of Manchester, N. H., was chosen as Miss America by officials of the Miami International Beauty Pageant Association in June, 1930, after they had disqualified for ineligibility winners of the first and second prize winners of the contest conducted the preceding March.

In August, 1930, Miss Ekdahl was reported engaged to Will Osborne, radio crooner, who then was challenging the sway of Rudy Vallee in that field. The story later was denied.

PRISON JURY IN NEW SEARCH

Griffin, Ga., July 22 (US)—Investigation by the Spalding County special grand jury of a Negro convict's death at a Georgia chain gang road camp, near here, has led to a vigorous search for civilian eye witnesses to the fatal beating.

Warden P. H. Randall, who is accused of clubbing convict Lassiter to death, remained in the county jail.

The seriousness with which the grand jury views the inquiry was indicated today when the body asked and received from Superior Judge W. E. Searcy further information on Georgia laws prohibiting corporal punishment.

Richardson Silent on Goulston Charge

John Richardson, Republican national committeeman, today declined to comment on the lengthy and vitriolic public letter sent to him by Ernest J. Goulston, Republican leader.

Goulston charged Richardson with ousting him as advertising director for the Republican State committee, a berth Goulston has held for 16 years, because of alleged "personal animus and prejudice."

KILLINGS LAID TO CAPONE

Appleton, Wis., July 22 (US)—In a renewal of the deadly warfare for dominance in Chicago's underworld, two powerful figures in metropolitan labor circles were shot to death in a hail of machine gun bullets and shotgun slugs at the little Wisconsin town of Shawano, near here.

They were Patrick ("Paddy") Berrell, alias Patrick McMahon, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Stablemen, Helpers and Teamsters Unions, and Willie Marks, "Bugs" Moran, gangster and kinsman of Moran's.

The double killing was attributed by Chicago authorities to followers of the absent Al Capone in direct reprisal for the recent machine-gunning of George ("Red") Barker, labor terrorist and a Capone ally.

Search was instituted for James ("Fur") Sammons, released from the state penitentiary only a few days ago on a writ of habeas corpus. It was "Red" Barker who raised the defense fund for Sammons that finally obtained his release.

Berrell and Marks had been drinking in a quiet resort at Shawano. As they emerged a big black sedan drove alongside. There was a rattle of machine gun fire and the roar of a sawed-off shotgun. Both men fell dead in their tracks.

BOY CONVICT'S STORY OF SHOT IN BACK TRUE

State Prison, Raiford, Fla., July 22 (INS)—The sensational charge of James Dennison, young Philadelphia convict, that he was shot in the back by a Florida prison guard, was corroborated here today by Donald B. Collins, another convict, who called the alleged assault a "deliberate attempt at murder."

Collins made this statement to International News Service before he knew that Dennison had been interviewed in the nearby hospital. Collins, 43, a former newspaperman and former Hollywood, Fla., night club proprietor, is serving three years for forgery.

SHOT ON GROUND

Collins joined with Dennison in naming Walter Gafford, guard, as the man who fired a pistol shot into the Philadelphians back as he lay helpless after being shot down in an attempted escape. Collins declared it was "only a miracle it didn't kill Dennison." Both convicts said the shooting occured at Camp 41, near Kenansville, Fla., Jan. 12, 1932.

The Collins statement was turned over to Gov. Carlton, who has ordered a sweeping investigation. The wounded youth is a patient in the prison hospital here, with state physicians datling to save his life.

CRIPPLED FOR LIFE

He will be crippled for life, even if he recovers. At present he is encased in a plaster cast from his chest to his ankles. The shotgun charge blew a three-inch hole in his left leg.

"I have ordered an investigation of these charges," said Gov. Carlton. "I am reluctant to believe such a story, but I am going to find out if it is true. I have ordered the prison inspection service to interview every person at the camp at the time Dennison says he was shot."

RAFFLES ROBS RICH WOMEN

New York, July 22 (INS)—A clever Raffles lifting jewels from socially prominent women, whose latest victim is a friend of the Prince of Wales, was sought by police today as perpetrator of two new gem thefts netting the robber $45,000 worth of loot.

Both Mrs. David Dows, Brookville, wife of the wealthy sheriff of Nassau county and friend of the prince, and Mrs. Maxine H. Furland, of Park ave. and Princeton, N. J., strangely lost jewels while attending different farewell parties aboard ocean liners on which their friends sailed.

Mrs. Dows was robbed of a $35,000 diamond-studded bracelet, while Mrs. Furland reported the theft of a $10,000 diamond set platinum brooch.

Only recently, Mrs. Payne Whitney, social leader, was robbed of a $25,000 brooch set with a rare octagonal emerald.

6000 Strikers Stay Out for Higher Pay

High Point, N. C., July 22 (AP)—Joined by 400 employes of an overall company, 6000 striking hosiery mill workers stood firm today in their refusal to accept terms offered by the management of 22 mills affected.

At a meeting last night a decision was reached to demand higher wages.

Stereotypers Vote for Five-Day Week

Cleveland, July 22 (AP)—The International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union of North America was on record today favoring the five-day week as a solution for unemployment.

Authorization to local unions to adopt a five-day law was voted at the convention here yesterday.

Hundreds Return to Merrimack Jobs

Haverhill, July 22 (INS)—There were signs of prosperity returning to the Merrimack valley today. Approximately 1500 shoe factory workers were back at their benches here.

In Lowell, the Stirling Mills and the plant of the American Hide and Leather Co. were reopened.

What People Want: Job, Beer, Let Alone

Buffalo, July 22 (AP)—Galen Starr Ross, who sought unsuccessfully to be governor of Ohio on the Democratic ticket last year, summarized in a speech here the wants of the American people as:

"A job, a glass of beer—and lots of letting alone."

RANGER'S DEATH CALLED SUICIDE BY LEARY

Joseph F. Ranger, construction company executive, who was found dead yesterday at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, was a suicide, Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner, reported today.

Dr. Leary told police an autopsy showed death due to cyanide.

Ranger was president and treasurer of the Casper Ranger Construction Co. and one of the best-known builders in the East.

His death had been believed due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

He lived in Northampton st., Holyoke, but had a temporary home here pending the completion of work by his company on the New Old South Church in Copley sq. Ranger was also head of a lumber and brick concern.

Two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Ranger and Mrs. Katherine Ranger Clarke of Buffalo, and a son, Casper, 2d, survive. His son is the husband of the former Alice Winslow, daughter of the president of the United Shoe Machinery Co.

Father of Victim

CHARLES W. STEVENS

TONIC TO WOMAN COSTS HIM $600

Norman Hazard of Prince st., Worcester, charged in three counts with practicing medicine without a license, was fined a total of $600 today in East Boston court.

He appealed and was held in $500.

Hazard was brought into court from Middlesex County House of Correction at Billerica on a writ of habeas corpus. He is serving a sentence for violating a two-year probation.

Carmella Brigulis of Chelsea st., East Boston, testified that on three occasions she purchased build-up tonics from Hazard and that each time she got a tonic from which she "almost died."

Twenty-five character witnesses and patients whom he treated successfully, according to their testimony, appeared for Hazard.

2 CHARGED WITH FIRING BUILDING

Springfield, July 22 (AP)—Mrs. Rose Novak and her brother, Charles Wolfe, arrested yesterday, were arraigned today charged with burning a building with intent to defraud an insurance company and pleaded not guilty. The arrests followed a blaze in a building owned by Mrs. Novak which housed an auto parts company. The fire caused the death of Ralph Frangiose, who, with a companion, was in the upper story, and leaped from a window. The companion, believed to have been badly burned, is sought.

MELROSE GIRL SHOT DEAD

girls. Miss Prigge' body was in the river and that of Miss Polikiawski was on the bank a half-mile upstream. Neither had drowned, an autopsy established.

These two girls had gone for an auto ride with some men but nothing was learned to indicate Miss Stevens was in this party or that her car was the car in which the other girls left Rochester, although this possibility was investigated.

University authorities said that as far as they knew Miss Stevens was not acquainted with the other victims although during her college year she often took long drives into the countryside from the Twin Cities.

Neither were the university officials aware that Miss Stevens possessed a pistol.

A theory that a maniac may be at large in the Zumbro river valley was given some consideration. Posses were organized to aid Minnesota troopers and Lake City police in the search for the men with whom the Rochester girls are known to have gone riding.

Those who attended the North St. Paul party where Miss Stevens was last seen near the college were also being questioned. Police were particularly concerned as to whether the Melrose girl was alone when she left the party. Most of those in attendance were students at the Minnesota university.

BEER BOTTLE IN CAR

A bottle that had contained beer or near-beer was found in Miss Stevens' car, the Massachusetts registration plates of which established her identity.

Although there appeared to be no doubt as to the cause of her death, an autopsy was to be performed. The organs of the other girls were sent to a Rochester clinic for chemical analysis.

Miss Stevens' father was notified of the tragedy at the bank by telegram from the dean of the university. The wire informed him that his daughter was dead and that she had apparently shot herself, being despondent.

Mr. Stevens immediately communicated with police and university officials by long distance telephone and was assured that an exhaustive investigation was in progress.

He said he doubted that his daughter took her own life and he made preparations to leave for the west at once. Her recent letters had shown her to be in good spirits, he said, and there was absolutely no cause insofar as he was aware why she should be unhappy.

Her mother was prostrated in her home and under the care of a physician after the news was received.

Her grandfather was Harry Stevens, owner of an express business and prominent in Masonic circles. Her great-grandfather was the founder of a Boston insurance business that established the foundation of the family fortunes.

She has two older sisters, both of whom were married.

RELIEF BOARD IS LOCKED IN

How the Winchester welfare board had to seek aid itself was revealed today.

The board, consisting of two women and a man, with a woman secretary, was in session until nearly midnight last night. When they decided to go home, they found they could not leave the building at Main and Mt. Vernon sts.

Edward Callahan, the janitor, had gone home after locking the building, thinking all occupants were out.

Telephone calls to the police for help brought Patrolman Derro, who could not find Callahan. About 1 o'clock Derro found a key and released the prisoners.

The board members are Mrs. Lilla Ryan, Miss Nellie Sullivan, Earl A. Andrews and Mrs. Ellen Wilson, secretary.

PROPERTY OWNERS GET WELFARE FUNDS

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(This is the tenth of the series of stories of charity swindlers of Boston.)

Men who own houses have been collecting as financial aid from the city anywhere from $5 to $15 a week.

Of course, they haven't said that they own houses, but investigating officials have unearthed several cases of welfare applicants who have joint interest in property. In some cases owners have been brazen enough to transfer the real estate to another just before applying for help.

When called to account, the real property owner disclaims ownership and "leases his home" to another member of the family.

FUNDS TRANSFERRED

In one case the applicant not only had joint ownership in several parcels of real estate with his brother, but he had assigned a bank account of several hundreds of dollars to his wife and she had withdrawn money shortly before they made application for aid.

A statement signed by this man that he made the transfer "solely for the purpose of defrauding the city" gives him no "out" in the matter.

Many of these fakers are running for cover and pleading for a chance to make restitution of amounts taken in aid from the city. But, although Special Officer Ernest F. Fanjoy is accepting agreements for restitution, prosecution rests in the hands of Hale Power, assistant corporation counsel, who, under orders from Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman and Mayor Curley, must:

AIDED AND HAD $1500

No person "on the level" with the city and its welfare department is turned away. No one is permitted to go hungry. He is expected to tell a truthful story and if he does neither he nor his dependents will remain in want.

There was no reason for a woman faker's getting $150 from the city in poor relief when she had $1500 in the bank, credited to her married daughter. The daughter professed ignorance of the account which her mother had placed in her name.

And then there is the case of another man who tried to put something over on the city. He did, to the tune of $250 in jobless relief payments, until $2000 was found in the bank in his wife's name. He was forced to make restitution.

When the city stopped giving another man aid, he put up a complaint. But when he was confronted with information that he was working nights in Belmont, he cringed and sorrowfully admitted the truth.

ASSETS ATTACHED

Although a system of vigorous investigation has been instituted at Hawkins st., with 50 staff visitors and three supervisor making the rounds, welfare chiselers creep into the files somehow.

But not for long.

Only the routine of investigation keeps them on the books and when evidence is unearthed against them, their is property attached, the aid immediately stops.

Bank accounts are attached without any notification to the applicant. His first inkling that he is at odds with the welfare department comes when he no longer receives aid and is told by the worker that his application is temporarily held up for further investigation.

Even then some of these undeserving recipients of aid don't realize that they have been "discovered." They will deny having bank accounts and property.

Welfare officials have ordered the attachment of bank accounts of a Charlestown family in a communication from secretary of the Board of Overseers of the Poor, Walter V. McCarthy, to Asst. Corporation Counsel Power.

The letter tells of several thousands of dollars in the names of a mother and a daughter, although both applied for aid from the welfare department.

There's Chicken in Pot for Neighbors

Philadelphia, July 22 (AP)—Magistrate Belcher solved the dilemma of the two hens and one rooster which, neighbors complained, annoyed them. He told Marcel Donofray, owner of the fowls, to put them in the pot for Sunday's dinner.

Donofray said "O. K." and invited the complaining neighbors and the magistrate to join him at the meal.

Lincoln's Village toBe Reproduced

Springfield, Ill., July 22 (AP)—Gov. Emmerson today approved plans that will result in the reproduction of Old Salem, the village in which Abraham Lincoln lived from 1831 to 1837.

British Mill Strike Near

Manchester, Eng., July 22 (AP)—Cotton mill unions today called a strike for tomorrow morning as a protest against proposed wage reductions. The walkout would affect between 15,000 and 20,000 men.

Dry Agent Raids Club, Drank Up $7

New York, July 22 (AP)—The $7 that Dry Agent John Dowd says he spent for drinks and a bite to eat in the Club Calais brought woe to that Broadway resort.

Dowd went there as a cash customer at the behest of a "stoolie," he said. Last night he returned with his badge outside. Twenty-five persons, including steerers, entertainers and musicians, were arrested.

LOVE CLUE IN DEATH MYSTERY

Menlo Park, Cal., July 22 (AP)—A theory that the ambition of a gardener to marry his wealthy employer may have resulted in the deaths of Mrs. Edith Orr Spencer and John Viano was held today as police investigated what they termed a slaying and suicide.

From Vincent Cruz, Filipino house boy, investigators hear that Viano, 41, had been eager to marry Mrs. Spencer, 50-year-old widow of two months, since the death of her husband, Franklin Spencer.

Coroner J. C. McGovern said the house boy told of a convacation with Viano concerning the marriage of a chauffeur and his wealthy, widowed employer. Cruz said Viano remarked:

"Maybe I could do that, too."

From other sources, police said they learned the gardener had been despondent because of losses he had sustained from financial investments made on Mr. Spencer's advice.

Physical evidence in the case, the coroner said, indicated clearly Viano had shot Mrs. Spencer and then turned the gun on himself.

Rep. Dickstein, N. Y., Weds His Secretary

New York, July 22 (AP)—The secret marriage of Congressman Samuel Dickstein to his secretary, Miss Essie Tevers of Brooklyn, was made known today. The congressman's sister said the marriage took place Tuesday.

GERMAN NAZIS BATTLE WITH SOCIALISTS

Berlin, July 22—Rioting broke out in the little Rhineland town of Hamburg today between the Nazi followers of Adolph Hitler and adherents of the Socialist Reichsbanner party.

Police attacked the rioters and drove them from the streets.

Two Nazis and four Socialists were injured.

Hugo Heimansberg, chief of Berlin police, was tumbled out of bed by soldiers early today and taken to military prison on suspicion of actions in contravention of the presidential decree imposing martial law in Berlin.

A major of police and a member of the Reichsbanner, whose name is Carlbergh, were arrested with him.

POPULAR OFFICER

Heimansberg, one of the most popular police officials, was arrested on Wednesday, with Albert Grzesinski, commissioner of Prussian police, when Grzesinski and his chief assistants refused to relinquish their jobs at the demand of Gen. von Rundstedt, who is in charge of enforced martial law. They were liberated in a few hours.

The specific charges against the police chief today were not disclosed.

The Democratic newspaper Acht Uhr Abenblatt was suspended for four days and the Communist paper Rote Fahne for five by the dictatorship of Chancellor von Papen today.

Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, minister of defense, has smashed a Communist plot for a general strike.

The Communist plans had the secret support of Socialists willing to stake their own future and the fate of Germany upon a strict alliance with the anarchist elements which have made a glass of beer the price of political murder in Prussia.

STRIKE PLOT FOILED

Prompt action by the police, now part of the military organization controlled by Von Schleicher, checkmated the plot. In all parts of Prussia police descended upon Communist printing plants. They destroyed millions of leaflets calling for the strike.

That the Communists were plotting revolution has been the burden of charges made for several weeks to Chancellor Von Papen by National Socialist followers of Adolf Hitler. The Nazis have repeatedly demanded that a ban be placed upon the Reds' activities and the party proscribed for treason.

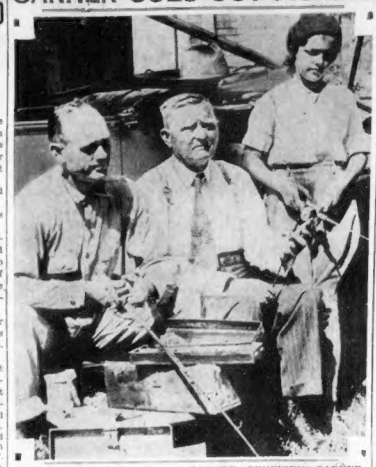
Stalled Auto Wrecks Train, 3 Injured

Harrisburg, Pa., July 22 (AP)—A Pennsylvania passenger train was wrecked today at Dauphin, 14 miles north of here, as it struck an automobile stalled on the track. Four of the five passenger cars left the rails and rolled over. Railroad officials said only three passengers were hurt, all slightly. The automobile apparently had been abandoned after it stalled.

Chelsea Fights to Cut Auto Insurance

Claiming a 60 per cent reduction in auto accidents in which Chelsea cars have figured, with a like reduction in personal injury claims, the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce opened a campaign today to take that city out of Zone 1 with the highest compulsory insurance rate in the state.

GARNER GOES OUT FISHING



ROSS BRUMFIELD JOHN N. GARNER GENEVIEVE GARNER

Cares of state shelved for the time being, Speaker John N. Garner of the National House started out on a two-day fishing trip from his home in Uvalde, Tex., with Ross Brumfield, Uvalde garage owner, who, Garner declares, is the best fisherman in all Texas. They are shown preparing for their outing with the aid of the Speaker's granddaughter, Genevieve Garner. (I. N. P.)

Roosevelt's Inexpensive Campaign No Big Hit With Some Leaders

Candidate Must Battle Those Democrats Who Believe in Having Good Time At Party's Expense

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, July 22 (US)—A simple and inexpensive presidential campaign may suit the Democratic nominee, Roosevelt, but it will not make much of a hit with Congressional and national leaders.

The Governor has already bettered many ancient party traditions. He has conceived the novel idea of conducting his presidential campaign along the same lines he employed in making his nomination bid.

He does not approve of an elaborate and costly program for winning votes in November. The expenses of his nomination probably set a new low record for such ventures. His plan for winning the final bout against Hoover will probably set another new low record—if he has his way.

But before he goes so, he will have to battle a lot of the national leaders who believe in making a showing, and incidentally finding entertainment at New York, Washington and Chicago at the expense of the party.

These gentlemen regard it as a legitimate perquisite of their political eminence to come to the aid of their party with sage advice and more or less valuable plans, expenses paid by the party organization.

This has always been the policy and the supporters of it see no reason why it should not be continued.

Four years ago the huge campaign fund (approximately $5,000,000, raised by John J. Raskob to help put "Happy Warrior" Smith over) enabled a great many of the statesmen of the party to spend a pleasant vacation with the minimum of responsibility.

Governor Roosevelt's policy will be just the opposite. He has indicated to National Chairman Farley that he sees no necessity for establishing elaborate regional headquarters in Washington, Chicago and other centers, under the direction of divisional commanders.

With the rank and file of Democrats this plan will probably find favor, in view of the depression.

The leaders who naturally desire to have a prominent place in the sun are not particular over the source of money with which to finance their activities as division and brigade commanders. They hold that they are entitled to have a hand and voice in the development of campaign procedure.

The fact is, however, that the formula for conducting political campaigns has always been wasteful and generally unprofitable.

Gov. Roosevelt's closest adviseers assert his campaign can be carried out for approximately one-half of the cost of previous ventures.

At any rate Chairman Farley has been directed to curtail the outlay for all "unnecessary" expense. He will probably do so, whether the leaders who require elaborate accommodations like it or not.

Monks, Seized in Check Case Has Sleeping Sickness

Long Beach, Cal., July 22 (AP)—Allan Bradford Monks, 50, Boston heir who had been sought by his family for nearly two years, was held today for San Diego police on a charge of issuing a bad check. His Japanese valet, George Otsuka, 40, was held as a material witness.

Police Surgeon W. P. Prince said he would recommend to police that Monks, apparently suffering from a form of "American sleeping sickness," be taken to the psychopathic ward of the Los Angeles General Hospital.

Police were forced to break down a door which had been locked from the outside to arrest Monks. He would not talk.

His wife, Mrs. Marie Antoinette Monks, and her uncle, Wiley Watson, are held on a worthless check charge in San Diego.

"I locked the door and took the key with me," Otsuka told police. "I have been caring for Monks on his wife's orders and have been following her instructions."

The search for Monks started when the Boston bank handling the $1,200,000 trust fund of which Monks is the beneficiary demanded an investigation when it was learned Mrs. Monks was signing her husband's monthly remittance check. Police entered the case when payment on a check supposedly signed by Monks and cashed by Mrs. Monks was stopped.

Man's Leg Broken in Auto Accident

Knocked from a rocking chair on the porch when an auto crashed into the house at which he was visiting in Salem st., Malden, last night, John F. Gay, 74, of Lebanon st., Malden, suffered a broken leg.

The automobile was operated, police say, by Frank Bluenstine, 41, of Bryant st., Malden, who was being taught to drive by Albert Wentroff of Malden.

BOY, 12, HELD IN $12,000 THEFT

New Orleans, July 22 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy was arrested for questioning here today after his mother accused him of participating in a $12,000 robbery.

Mrs. John Meilling told police her son, Joseph, and his father looted a palatial home in an exclusive district of silverware, household articles, clothing and firearms.

She conducted officers to a canal in which she said part of the loot was thrown. Divers recovered much of it and other articles were found in Meilling's automobile.

The Meilings and two other men were arrested as well as the boy.

CLUB WOMEN INTERESTED IN CIGARETTE PURITY WITNESS OLD GOLD SCIENTIFIC VICTORY

Mrs. Oliver C. Harriman, Mrs. Julian Gerard, and Mrs. William Thaw III, keen spectators of the Calorimeter test showing the greater coolness of OLD GOLD, in comparison with 3 other leading brands.

PROOF! . . . that's what you want in a cigarette advertisement. You can't smoke claims. You're entitled to evidence.

But do you get it . . . when an ad simply says: "My cigarette is better!"

OLD GOLD doesn't expect to win you by unsupported adjectives alone. But it does ask you to consider the findings of a great testing laboratory . . . as checked by scientists of two leading universities . . . then draw your own conclusions!

These laboratories made a "cool" test of 4 leading cigarette brands . . . an accurate, impartial scientific test. They repeated it 75 times. And consistently, the smoke of an OLD GOLD was shown to be the coolest, and hence the throat-easiest.

Coolness is the clue to quality in a cigarette. Only the finest, smoothest, purest tobacco burns "cool." Only PURE tobacco burns cool. In establishing itself as the coolest smoke, OLD GOLD proves itself the cigarette of purest and choicest tobacco quality; utterly free of hot-burning artificial flavorings.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

The Verdict of Science

"This is to certify that in 75 repeated cool tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B.T.Us. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

Old Gold averages 112 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand X
Old Gold averages 155 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand Y
Old Gold averages 156 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand Z

CHAMP KEEPS TITLE ON 2 FALLS

By JACK CONWAY

Henri DeGlane successfully defended his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion when he soundly licked "Gentleman" Jack Washburn in their bout at Braves Field.

Twenty thousand persons saw the Frenchman win the first fall on a foul in 6m. 56s. and the second in 23m. 2s. when he scored with an inside crotch hold and body slam.

Other than in the early stages of the contest when he kneed the champion repeatedly and also used a crushing right hand punch to the jaw, "Gentleman" Jack was outclassed by the champion.

DeGlane proved the better wrestler at all stages of the contest. He also proved late in the battle that he knows how to swing his dukes.

Referee Ted Tonneman called the first fall when Washburn defied his orders and used his knee to the midsection and also drove a short right-hand punch to the jaw.

When warfare was resumed there was not so much fouling on Washburn's part. He resorted to straight wrestling at which style of battle he was outclassed by DeGlane.

CHAMP GETS ROUGH

When Washburn saw the tide of battle turning against him, he once more opened fire with his fists and knee. DeGlane met him at his own game. Henri barraged with a fiery attack to the head which sent "Gentleman" Jack to the canvas. With Washburn swinging haymakers, DeGlane stepped in under a wild punch and clamped on an inside crotch hold and body slam. Another slam did the trick and enabled DeGlane to retain his championship.

The Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American received a share of the profits of the show which was promoted by Paul Bowser.

"I believe I proved I am Washburn's master at straight wrestling and also at fighting," said DeGlane in his dressing room after the bout. "Referee Tonneman was going to disqualify Washburn for the second fall as well as the first, but I pleaded with him not to do so. I knew I could lick Washburn no matter what tactics he used."

The crowd was disappointed when Tonneman gave DeGlane the first fall. The sudden ending jolted the fans.

DeGlane was given a splendid ovation when he entered the ring and later when he was introduced. Washburn drew boos when he took his bow.

Tonneman took considerable time in giving the big fellows their instructions. He then sent them to their corners with orders not to sweep into action until the bell sounded.

TONNEMAN WARNS

DeGlane moved to close quarters and sent Washburn crashing backwards.

When Washburn got back into action, he drove his knee to DeGlane's mid-section on two occasions. Referee Tonneman warned

Cave Men Perform at Tepee

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

They turned back the centuries and gave 25,000 of us a ride on the Magic Carpet into the Neolithic Age at Braves Field, last night. We went there to see Henri DeGlane and Jack Washburn wrestle for the world's heavyweight championship in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund.

When the moon came over Kate Smith's mountain—or was it the right field fence—what did we see? We saw two hairy-chested cavemen battling breast to breast, hand to hand, slugging, gouging, kneeing, kicking, fighting for a mate in a moonlit jungle glade.

That's just what it was this so-called match for the world's wrestling title, a duel to the death between two of our hairy progenitors of ages long past. And the primitive that is beneath the veneer of all of us surged in our souls and we forgot our culture and civilization and a snarl sounded in our throats and we roared and howled with all the lust and fierceness of the primal man pack.

A battle of abyssmal brutes, this so-called wrestling match in which we didn't see three real wrestling holds taken during the entire melee. If it wasn't a battle of abyssmal brutes then it was a cross between a family row, a brawl at Mickey Finn's or a wild night in the Psychopathic Ward. It wound up in a melee that approached a riot. If they had put it on on the street corner all hands would have been pinched.

But before the pinch was made they would have had to call out the reserves and ring for the ambulances. It was such a perfectly bee-oo-tiful scrap that we all wanted to get in it.

WASHBURN ROUGH

Maseu DeGlane won on two straight "falls," the first in 6:56, which Referee Tonneman of Chicago awarded to the champion because of Washburn's utter refusal to do anything but violate every rule of wrestling, and the second in 25:30 on a scotch hold, body lift and slam after a wild melee in which the pair slugged and gouged and kneed and choked like a pair of drunken longshoremen or exuberant lumberjacks.

Kid McCoy Is Through With Rings

San Francisco, July 22 (INS)—Exathound on a fast train, Norman Selby, better known as "Kid" McCoy, on parole from San Quentin Prison, today studied rules and regulations set for him by state authorities, leaving behind forever California, scene of a crime that branded him as a killer eight years ago.

Facing six years of restricted freedom, McCoy is scheduled to arrive in Detroit, Mich., late Sunday night, to work in an automobile plant.

He took the parole regulations out of his pocket and remarked:

"Gosh, here's a rule saying 'you are strictly forbidden to drive or operate an automobile, auto truck or motorcycle.' In prison, while chief of the convict fire department, I drove a truck. That's a tough rule to a guy moving into the Detroit neighborhood.

"And here's another rule: 'Your civil rights are suspended . . . therefore you cannot marry.'

'YANK' YACHTS TOO GOOD FOR BRITONS

Cowes, Isle of Wight, July 22 (AP)—Victorious in the first three matches for the British-America cup the United States six-meter fleet continued its fine work today and led the British at the end of the first round of the fourth race.

Nancy led the fleet around the turn with the British yacht Vorsa second and then the other three American entries, Jill, Locie and Robkat, coming along in order ahead of the other three British craft.

The breeze was light and there were rain squalls. The race began with a beat to windward against a strong tide, then a straight run back. The second round was sailed over a triangular course.

Bobkat led the fleet home with another American, Jill, second; the British boat, Vorsa, third, and the other two American entries, Nancy and Lucie fourth and fifth.

The British crews gave the Americans rousing cheers as they sailed up to the anchorage and were loud in their praise of the seamanship of the Americans.

Only Vorsa of the British challengers made any showing, the rest of the British entries never figuring in the four contests. The first three races were sailed off Ryde and the scene shifted to Cowes only for the final.

The defeat of the American star was a distinct upset as the United States has been favored to sweep the series against the winners of the European zone.

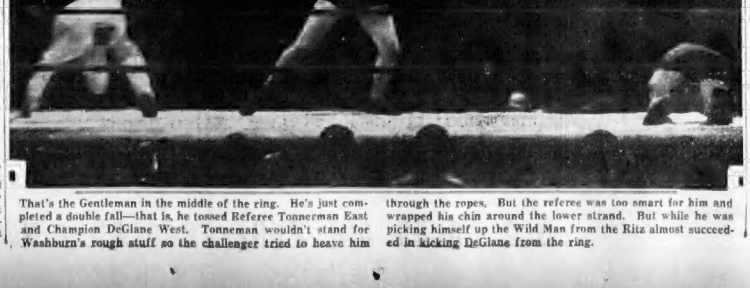
REFEREE'S RIDE ON WASHBURN SPECIAL



That's the Gentleman in the middle of the ring. He's just completed a double fall—that is, he tossed Referee Tonneman East and Champion DeGlane West. Tonneman wouldn't stand for Washburn's rough stuff so the challenger tried to heave him through the ropes. But the referee was too smart for him and wrapped his chin around the lower strand. But while he was picking himself up the Wild Man from the Ritz almost succeeded in kicking DeGlane from the ring.

BRAVES TILT WITH GIANTS AT WIGWAM TODAY

By JOE MOONEY

After almost a month's absence, our conquering Braves are on the home stamping grounds at the Commonwealth ave. tepee today to open a series with Bill Terry's Giants, marking the preliminary skirmish which will see the three-cornered fight among the Pirates, the Cubs and the Braves come to some sort of logical conclusion.

Take Manager Bill McKechnie's word for it, the spot occupied by the Frisbeemen at present is not so tough. It is, in fact, a much better spot than the position currently held by the Western clubs. And for many reasons.

For one thing, a glance at the schedule will show that the Braves have but one more western swing before the end of the season. They leave August 6 to return September 2 and finish the season at home.

Both the Pirates and the Cubs have two away from home swings to make and this is not calculated to work to their advantage. Especially in the case of Chicago, which Mr. McKechnie holds up as the horrible example of how poor a club can be away from home.

Now to return to the sixth place Giants, who come to Braves Field bearing bludgeons today. While Manager Bill has not definitely decided who shall do the honors for the Braves today, the choice falls between Walter Betts and Hubert Pruett, variously nicknamed "Shucks," "Hub" and sometimes "Doc." McKechnie's emphasis in pronouncing the probable pitchers falls upon Betts.

Bobby Brown, who will be tendered a day at the field tomorrow, will grace the mound on the second day of the current series.

Betts, the St. Paul drafter, is tuning his right soup bone to the Queen's taste, and is ripe to give the Terrys something astounding in the way of curving delivery.

Manager Bill McKechnie had much of diamond portent to divulge as the home coming Braves settled down for the home stay. He opined that the rest of the season would see the present three top place holders still at the top. He declined to state in what order the Braves, Chicago and Pittsburgh would finish, but this we may attribute to McKechnie's natural modesty.

It is no secret, I am told, that Bill was considerably surprised with the great showing made by the Braves to date, and being surprised, McKechnie is now ready for anything.

MACK SEEKS TO SIGN WALKER

Mickey Walker has been wired an offer by Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Argonne A. A. to meet the winner of the 10-round bout between Leo Larivee of Waterbury, Ct., and Odonne Piazza of the North End, which will be held at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night.

Walker has been battling as a heavyweight, but he still only weighs 165 pounds.

Walker has always been a red hot favorite here. He appeared here frequently in the days before he won the world's welterweight crown from Jack Britton.

Several attempts were made to match Jim Maloney with Walker, but there was always a hitch to the bout.

EQUIPOISE IS FAVORED TO WIN

New York, July 22 (INS)—Will Equipoise meet his Waterloo tomorrow? Can the son of Pennant meet so severe a test as that which faces him in the Arlington Handicap?

One hundred and thirty-four pounds will be slapped on him in token of esteem, and that weight must be toted a mile and a quarter.

But, despite the fact that Equipoise will be conceding 17 pounds to his nearest rival, White Clover II, who will bear 117 pounds, and as much as 29 pounds to so good a horse as Pittsburgher, who will shoulder a featherweight of 105, the consensus is the Whitney champion will not be stopped.

Hailed as the greatest racehorse since Man O' War, Equipoise has repeatedly demonstrated his ability to carry heavy burdens over any kind of a track.

MATMEN LIKE PRIMITIVES IN TILT

Roughhousers as well. He met the Boss Bully of the Mat at his own game and licked him according to his own code. Turn to Jack Conway for the harrowing and expert details.

The preliminaries are over and it's main bout time. DeGlane in his championship robes of royal purple emblazoned with a big French gamecock is towered over by the giant Washburn, who struts about the mat for all the world like a big Shanghai rooster, pompously escorting the hens to the dough dish.

A goodly crowd, a representative crowd headed by Hizhonner, James Michael Curley, mayor of the great city of Boston, is there. The ring is introduced by former Lieut.-Gov. Edward P. Barry, and he makes a speech, thanking the Boston Evening American for the great work it has done and is doing for the poor of Boston through the Christmas Basket Fund.

DOCTORS READY

Too much to toss your hat from the matside without hitting a celebrity. They were there from all walks of life. Over on our side of the ring we noticed an abundance of medical men. There was Dr. Martin Spellman and Dr. William Haley, of Beacon st. and Marblehead, and Dr. Harry Cahill, the nose, throat and ear specialist, who a quarter of a century ago was Holy Cross's captain and all-star quarterback. There were Doctors Clewey, McLean, Sherman and Hookway. They must think they'll be needed.

The few scouts there is drover. There's Louise Groody, the musical comedy star, and Dorothy Dixon of the Follies. There's Mrs. Gus Sonnenberg, a prize beauty herself. There's Charles F. Adams of the First National Scouts and the Bruins, and Joe Burke, the Worcester insurance man. William Kennedy, the scribbler, has a ringside seat, here is Roy Marlow of WNAC, Judge Fuchs of the Braves, and look at the flock of ball players! Bobbie Mansville, Art Jacobs, Bob Brown, most all of the Braves.

We're looking around at the crowd while Referee Tonneman and the principals and their retinue of handlers hold a pow wow at mat center. It's over. The gong rings. They go at it.

WILD MAT WAR STAGED

Wrestling match? Wrestling match, my necktie! DeGlane sure is at it if he wanted to wrestle, but Washburn would not let him. Jack apparently gets the hallucination he is down on the waterfront battling with another longshoreman. He knees, kicks, gouges, chokes, slugs, despite all of Referee Tonneman's frantic admonitions. It was such a wild knockdown and dragout shindy that strong men wept and sweet young things frothed at the mouth.

You never saw such a peach of a scrap folks. Wrestling? Who wanted wrestling? A small minority. But even those who bellowed for Washburn to quit slugging and get to wrestling were up in their chairs roaring like wild men or shrieking like imbeciles. Like it? No, not like it. They loved it.

All good things must come to an ending. The Battle of the Bull Moose came to an end after 25:30, as aforesaid. It was climaxed by Washburn refusing to recognize the fall and he and the handlers of both sides staging a semi-riot. It was the end of a beautiful melee

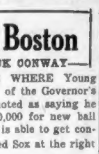
Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

I NOTICE WHERE Young Win Schuster of the Governor's Council is quoted as saying he will pay $500,000 for new ball players if he is able to get control of the Red Sox at the right price.

I know several major league baseball owners who happen to have plenty of the coin of the realm despite the inroads of the depression, who would like to know where they could spend as little as $50,000 for a ball player of major league calibre.

If one had the time and the necessary amount of recklessness, he probably could spend $500,000 for new ball players, but he would not have any guarantee he could get a single player of exceptional ability.



Mr. Boston

The most striking case of where a club was able to go out and buy the players necessary to win a pennant was when the Yankees raided the Red Sox and ended up with Ruth, Scott, Jones, Pennock, Hoyt, Nunamaker and several other first class stars.

Nowadays, with each club trying to keep up in the pennant race, it is not so easy to buy stars. As for the minors, they are not turning out a great deal of good material.

BOB QUINN SAYS he does not know anything about any deal by which Schuster would take over the Red Sox. I presume Quinn is tired of having folks buy his ball club. Bob told me two years ago that the Red Sox could be bought, but that money and not concession would be required to consummate such a deal.

There was a time when the Boston Garden, represented by Hayden & Stone, was dickering to purchase the Sox. There was real money behind this deal, but it went up in smoke when the stock market crashed.

So What?

By JOE MOONEY

It was all right, Jack Washburn says, for Henri DeGlane to commit murder in the name of sweet charity. But what Washburn resented was robbing the corpse.

Ah, what a show! They played the national anthem, and then out all the lights. Then somebody stole George Grimm's hat. .....

Charlie Hanson drew with Johnny Spellman. Pat McGill drew with Al Morelli. Len Macaluso drew with Joe Mackewicz. Don George drew with Jim Browning. What is this, an art colony.

The rooster emblem of Henri DeGlane drew crows of delight from the crowd. But the best Washburn could get was the cluck.

The lady who came in just after the principals came to grips will endear herself to this department forever. When Washburn managed to get to his feet, the lady shrieked:

"My heavens! Will you look where his chest slipped to?"

And just to show you how they compared in size: the crack of one of DeGlane's admirers who thought he saw the champ in a fight place and yelled, "Stand up, Henri!" And DeGlane answered, "I am."

DEGLANE PUTS SKIDS UNDER WASHBURN

Washburn against his foul tactics.

Referee Tonneman stepped in between the wrestlers. He pointed at Washburn and exclaimed, "I'm warning you for the last time. The next time I'll throw you out of the ring."

DeGlane stepped in and clamped on an arm lock. Washburn was not a match for the champion at straight wrestling. He once more resorted to rough-house tactics. "Gentleman" Jack's right hand bounced off the champion's jaw, while his knee went crashing to DeGlane's mid-section.

WASHBURN LOSES FALL

DeGlane dropped to the canvas. Tonneman disqualified Washburn for foul tactics.

"You win the first fall," the referee said to DeGlane.

The time of the disqualification was 6m. 56s.

Washburn was booed lustily when he returned to the ring. Tonneman soon had the big fellows in action again.

Washburn forced his way to close quarters and dropped the champion to the mat with an arm lock. The Frenchman broke the hold, and got onto his feet.

Washburn forced his way in close, clamped on a headlock and sent DeGlane reeling backwards. The crowd yelled "strangle," but the hold was perfectly fair.

HENRI SOCKS FOR

It took DeGlane two minutes to break the hold. Washburn then forgot Tonneman's warnings and kneed DeGlane. The champion brought cheers from the crowd when he belted Washburn in the stomach with a right hand smash.

The power of the sock drove Washburn half way across the ring much to the delight of the crowd.

WASHBURN WILTS

Washburn gripped DeGlane with a headlock. DeGlane quickly dropped down a foot, came bouncing back and sent Washburn sprawling across the ring.

Washburn made a big play with arm locks. The challenger used his strength to punish the champion.

Pat McGill started coaching Washburn from the corner. Tonneman instructed him to keep silent. A regiment of cops surrounded Washburn's corner to preserve order.

CHAMP KNOCKED DOWN

As DeGlane stepped back out of a clinch, Washburn ripped up a terrific right-hand uppercut which sent DeGlane to the mat. The champion remained down for 30 seconds.

Tonneman wanted to give DeGlane the bout on a foul, but the champion pushed the referee aside and drove to close quarters where he landed punch for punch with Washburn. Washburn had the greater power behind his wallops and dropped DeGlane twice. As the champion came up on the mat Washburn let fly a terrific right hand haymaker.

DeGlane dropped his head inside of the punch. As Washburn swayed, DeGlane dropped to quickly, clamped on an inside crotch hold, lifted Washburn in the air and slammed him to the mat.

Washburn let go another right hand sock when he resumed wrestling. DeGlane bounced off, and quickly, scored with another inside crotch hold and slammed Washburn to the mat for the winning count in 25m. 20s.

Tonneman declared DeGlane the winner. When Washburn found out he had been beaten, he made a rush at DeGlane. The champion met him with a two fisted barrage of punches. Tonneman pried the big fellows apart.

Fish and Game

By WIN BROOKS

That bathybic mammal tossed up by the surf is back, waist-deep, in his native element all along the southern Massachusetts coast from Westport harbor to the tip of seven-mile Monomoy, off Chatham.

In other words the surf fisherman is fishing. For the bluefish are running and the striped bass are in, after a two weeks' absence due to the dogfish schools. (I hold a diploma from one of the latter, by the way.)

The best Buzzards Bay fishing since the construction of the canal is reported. Bass from five to 20 pounds are being taken from the tide rip between Bizzards Bay and Buttermilk Bay. There you get the advantage of good fishing on both the incoming and outgoing tides.

If the tide is running in, fish from the outside of the railroad bridge with your bait carried up to and under the bridge. When the tide is running out, fish from the outside of the highway bridge with your bait fairly close to the second arch.

Choose your own equipment, but give this grand fighter half a chance with light tackle. Sea worms or an eel for bait. Use a light swivel but no sinker. You can get boat and bait at the scene and an oarsman if you want him.

Director Ray Kenney is in the field preparatory to the all-important decision regarding which trout feeder brooks are to be closed to fishing next season.

Under the broad piscatorial sky there is no subject not of a controversial nature. Ice fishing, and its effect upon summer fishing, becomes annually a subject of wider discourse and inquiry. Bob Smith, Ned Chapman and Jack Sheehan were arrowchinning about it the other day when along came a real salmon fisherman, Edmund H. Tougas, of Silver Hill rd., Weston.

Since 1917, he and a party of Boston sportsmen of which Fred Kennedy was a member, have been spending at least one week at their log cabin on Farrows Lake, Topsfield, Me., a few miles from the Canadian border. In the lake are salmon, trout and togue.

And then the lake was opened to ice fishing.

"Four of us went up there this year," said Tougas. "We fished five days and killed six salmon, 14 and 15 inches long. During the winter people had come from miles around to fish through the ice, taking the big fish feeding

Open Season on Fowl Extended

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The open season for hunting wild ducks and geese has been extended from one to two months for the coming year by President Hoover at the recommendation of Secretary Hyde.

The lengthened season, it was said at the Department of Agriculture, is made possible by improvement in the situation which became serious for waterfowl following drouth on their breeding grounds in 1931.

The new open season for ducks, geese, brant and coot is from Oct. 16 to Dec. 15 for Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

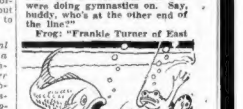
When he hasn't been drilling recruits at Devens, Jimmy O'Neil of the customs service has been taking some nice bass out of Big Long pond—a lot of them on shrimp while waiting for a salmon to drop in.

Bass: "Well, well, well. Look who's down here!"

Frog: "Stop watering at the mouth, you lunkhead. Can't you see the hook in my lips?"

Bass: "Hook huh? I thought that was a horizontal bar you were doing gymnastics on. Say, buddy, who's at the other end of the line?"

Frog: "Frankie Turner of East Milton."



Bass: "You're sure?"

Frog: "Sure. Why?"

Bass: "Well, he puts out a good feed for nothing. Here goes! What'll you have for a chaser?"

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Fred Bogardus, Jr., and Robert Breed, members of the entertaining clan that ran away with the net prize for the two-day Tedesco Country Club 36-hole four-ball invitation, Beverly, who is a member of the lone net winning combination a year ago, and Breed, whose handicap entitled him to a stroke a hole, turned in a net 68 for the first round, and then knocked down another 68 for the second for a total of 135.

Apparently the younger element at Tedesco does not play fair with Charles F. Sprague; the club handicapper, for every year some team composed of youthful members will over-handicapped captures the net prize in the annual four-ball invitation by a safe margin.

Giants Find Hallahan

St. Louis—"Wild Bill" Hallahan, Cardinal left-hander who last year was one of the team's most effective hurlers, was pounded for 19 hits and 15 runs in 12 successive innings against the Giants this summer.

In order not to slight any of the three clubs, which are holding tournaments today and tomorrow, the open tourney players will be obliged to split, racing to Highland, Wachusett and Rockport.

The Wachusett Country Club started its initial M. G. A. open tournament this morning. Wachusett, which is located in Boylston, on the outskirts of Worcester is an exceptionally fine layout and many greater Boston players will participate in the Wachusett open.

Although the Wachusett and Rockport opens wind up tomorrow night, the Highland event will continue through Sunday.

Now that the Brae Burn Country Club has given its sanction for the use of its course, the Francis Ouimet-Gene Sarazen match which will be a 36-hole tilt, the first round to be played at Winchester and the final 18 at Brae Burn, should prove to be one of the greatest golf attractions ever staged in New England.

INVADING OLYMPIANS STRONG IN SPRINTS

U.S. RACERS IN FOR TOUGH STRUGGLE

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Chief Coach American Olympic Team
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Los Angeles, Calif., July 22—Here we are, all of us relaxed and taking it easy. But not for long. The boys will begin romping around a bit in a day or two, then romping still more early next week and finish up with tightening exercises.

Although I have been here only a few hours I find that our team will have to be in splendid condition to get in the honors which, earlier, we reckoned were ours without much striving.

The European nations have sent across some "sleepers" and it is well that we already have a tipoff as to the seeming greatness of the men that will go in the 100, 200 and 400 meters—events which we felt we had at our mercy.

Nothing is more fatal than over-confidence.

FOREIGNERS CAPABLE

Because we had heard but little about the foreigners who now are quartered here, and because the times they turned in during their European races were extremely slow in relation to that of our boys, some of us had the strance notion that all that would be necessary for victory would be the formality of going through into the races.

But I hear about great men sent by England and Germany in the sprint events and about stars that will glitter at the middle distances. These boys have been running in a way that has amazed the onlookers and I mean to get a checkup on them long before the real action begins.

Forewarned is forearmed—and we have our forewarning.

Our boys really seem happy over the fact that the Iron Curtain of the spectators in their ranks. They like nothing better than a stiff battle. Now that they seem destined to get it, they will get right down to business when the real time arrives, pull themselves on razor edge and when the real battling begins it will be only a super-man among the Europeans who can turn us back into defeat.

1932 SQUAD GREATEST

It has been said—and justly so—that our Olympic squad of 1932 is the greatest that we ever have welded together. This is true. The boys want to prove it.

But they may have to exert the last ounce of energy within them to do so. For we are going to face sterner competition than ever before and the athletes of the U. S. A. must be at their superative best to fence off the thrusts of the foreigner.

Olympic Committee Takes Up Nurmi Case

By FRANK G. MENKE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22 (INS)—Axes are being whetted these days by the International Amateur Athletic Federation for the purpose of decapitating all and sundry athletes who aspire to mingle in the 10th Olympiad and now seem to be tainted with a dash or two of commercialism, alleged or otherwise.

As a preliminary to the sentencing and execution, the American Olympic committee will hold a session this afternoon for the purpose of exploring the whys and wherefores of the amateur status. It finds, no doubt, will be reported to the I. A. A. F., which is the supreme court of amateur athletics throughout the civilized world.

Paavo Nurmi, the flitting Finn is one of those humans whose amateur turpitude, or otherwise, will be juggled around by the I. A. A. F. when it swings into executive session on July 28. In advance or this session the Finns are informing all who care to harken that Paavo is suffering from a shriveled pedal, or athlete's foot, or maybe it is housemaid's knee.

BILL WAS TOO LARGE

Some time ago Paavo was accused of that fearful crime known as monkey-doodling with an expense account, or maybe it was two or three expense accounts.

It seems that Paavo chucked in a bill for hotel and incidentals which a rival nation figured was quite too large to be normal and a protest was lodged with the I. A. A. F., which promptly passed the buck by asking Finland to investigate the mathematics as compiled by Paavo.

Finland put on its specs and found nothing at all wrong with Paavo and so informed the I. A. A. F., which should have settled the status quo. But, apparently, it did nothing of the sort because the I. A. A. F. never has signified acceptance of Finland's findings, and the question as to whether Nurmi will romp in the Olympic for dear old Finland will be decided on the 28th.

Then there is the strange case of Miss Stella Walsh, which will be given executive consideration.

This girl, greatest runner of her sex in the world, is on the griddle just now, charged with using her prowess and her fame to joust loyal sons of Poland and the loyal ones of the U. S. A. into a bidding match for her athletic-coaching services when the Olympics are done.

STELLA FROM POLAND

Stella, a daughter of Poland, is not a naturalized American citizen It appears that the dear girl asked for papers which would make her a 100 per cent Yankee. At about the same time somebody who was very Polish told Stella that if she refused to become an American and ran for Poland in the games, she would be rewarded with an elegant job as tutor of Polish lassies, eager to run as swift as Stella.

Stella later was accused of pointing out this offer to the Americans and asking "what will you do for me if I become an American?" and when an offer was made of a more elegant job with more elegant cash, it is stated that Stella went back to the Polander and asked, "well, how about this, hey?" and continued to get the boys to hoist the figure until such time as Poland outbid the U. S. A., after which Stella announced she would use her legs to bring greater glory to Poland.

None will say that this wasn't high class business stuff, but there are some people who figure that business should not be entwined with the pleasure of being a lovely, simon-pure amateur.

PALFREY GIRLS PICKED TO WIN

Manchester, Mass., July 22 (AP)—The Palfrey sisters, Sarah and Jane, were the favorites today in the final round of the doubles of the Essex Country Club's invitation tennis tourney. They faced Mrs John Van Ryn of Philadelphia and Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Cal.

The Palfreys beat Mrs. Marjorie Morril painter of Dedham and Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of Oakland, Cal., during yesterday's semi-finals by one of the most brilliant exhibitions of tennis put on thus far in the Essex Club's tourney.

The final round of the singles was put over until tomorrow, when Mrs. Painter, who gained a leg on the Essex trophy three years ago, will face Miss Cruickshank. Mrs. Painter defeated Miss Babcock in the singles semi-finals.

COURT ACES' DEMANDS NOT TO BE MET

New York, July 22 (US)—A group of the foremost tennis players of the country have sent an ultimatum to the Seabright Lawn and Tennis Club to the effect that they would not participate in the important tournament there next week, unless their expenses are paid for the duration of the tournament.

Hitherto it has been the custom at the seabright Club, one of the best known in the nation, to pay the expenses of the players only until they are eliminated.

This policy brought some grumbling last year when it was charged by some players that the tournament committee in order to save hotel expenses rushed through the play. Most clubs pay expenses of players during the entire duration of the tournament, according to the players.

Indication that their demand will not be met was contained in the answer of Holcombe Ward, one of the officers of the club.

JUDGE STEVENS FINED; SHUNS PUBLICITY

Judge Elisha M. Stevens, associate justice of Lynn court, is going to keep out of the public eye hereafter.

The judge, a bit testily declared this today in refusing to make any comment on his busy day yesterday when he was fined a total of $39.70 in two New Hampshire courts after police had chased his automobile from Bristol to Concord, firing several shots.

"I've got no statement for the press or anybody else and you can do as you like about it," said Judge Stevens. "I'm going to keep away from publicity after this."

Then he slammed up the telephone receiver, cutting off the questioner.

Judge Stevens' excitement began at a tea room outside Bristol, N. H. when the proprietor noticed the absence of a 10-cent ash tray after the judge departed.

Police were called and a chase began, which ended in Concord with Judge Stevens being hauled by police from his car after he is alleged to have refused to get out.

In Concord court he was fined $10 and assessed $4.70 costs and at Bristol he was charged $25 for court costs, which included expense of the chase, returning him to Bristol, and stationing a guard outside his hotel room where he was technically under arrest.

He appealed the findings.

BAY RUM RULED A BEVERAGE

It may be an honor for the "hasso" or it may not but bay rum was officially ruled a beverage today in municipal court.

The ruling came by Judge Zoltoli, during arraignment of Charles Lesser, proprietor of a patent remedy shop in Staniford st., West End, and an alleged employe George Martini.

Lesser was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction and fined $100 on a charge of keeping and exposing for sale, while Martini was given a month and fined $50 for selling two bottles of bay rum to a policeman in plain clothes.

WOMAN KILLS GIRL, SHOOTS 3

Harrisburg, Ill., July 22 (INS)—Mrs. Myrtle Tyree was held in jail at Elizabethtown, Ill., today charged with manslaughter in the slaying of one young girl and the wounding of three others.

Mrs. Tyree is charged with firing a shotgun at the four girls as they were returning to their homes in Rosiclare after attending a camp meeting.

The slain girl was Minnie Reid, 15. The wounded are Ruby Reid, 17, her sister Geraldine Vaughn, 18, and Vida Lewis, 17.

Authorities charge that while the girls were passing Mrs. Tyree's home the woman discharged a shotgun from a porch of her home.

Mrs. Tyree was quoted by Deputy Sheriff Decker as saying someone had thrown a rock against her home.

Minister Facing Court Kills Self

Boone, N. C., July 22 (AP)—A threat that he would die before going to court had been made good today by Gold Ward, 36, Primitive Baptist minister and county election official.

Ward had been summoned in a case charging election fraud in 1930. He was found dead at his home, shot through the heart with a shotgun. Officers said it was suicide.

Vegetation in need of a wetting down will probably get it from showers tonight, the weather man predicted today. It will be partly cloudy tomorrow and the perfect summer temperature, in the low 70s and 80s, which Boston has been enjoying while the rest of the nation sizzled in a heat wave, will continue.

HEIRESS WEDS EMPLOYE

Clifford Zieger worked two years for Mrs. Robert J. Allyn, Hartford widow and society leader, then wed her.

RICHEST WIDOW WEDS YOUTH

New York, July 22—The apparent success of the marriage of that charming society grandma, Anne ("Fifi") Stillman, to her son's pal, Fowler McCormick, may have been the inspiration for the wedding of Connecticut's richest widow, Mrs Robert J. Allyn, and a former employe of her late husband, Clifford Zieger, 26 years her junior. The happy couple, who had flown to New York in Zieger's own plane, were staying at the Hotel Ritz Carlton yesterday, prior to leaving for a honeymoon in Mexico.

The ceremony was performed at Watch Hill, R. I., by Judge Davis, formerly an Episcopal minister. The only witnesses were friends of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Luckey Ward.

Zieger said he would take advantage of his honeymoon to look over the possibilities for commercial aviation in Mexico.

When Robert Allyn died three years ago, he left his $7,000,000 estate to his wife and daughter, a popular debutante. Zieger, who had been in Allyn's employ for about a year prior to his death, has been managing the business for Mrs Allyn.

When the couple return to this vicinity, the new Mrs. Zieger will probably purchase a Westchester home, she said.

Candidates Go Fishing

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Here's one thing we would like to ask Mr. Garner. Where are the Texas rivers in July?

We went fishing in the Trinity when the stream was so dusty you had to bait your hook with a wet sponge. The fish bit all right. But not because they were hungry. They were thirsty.

So Garner's fishing trip will be a 50-50 success.

Of all our big fishermen we guess Cal Coolidge is tops. The camera boys tells us that he is never out of focus.

ELY TO APPOINT AID FOR GUY

A "super-liquidating official" who will work under Bank Commissioner Guy will soon be appointed by Governor Ely to handle affairs of the closed banks of the state, the governor revealed today.

The appointment will be made, the governor said, because all the time of Bank Commissioner Guy is occupied with open banks.

The appointee will relieve Guy of all responsibility for closed institutions and probably will be made a special assistant attorney-general.

Governor Ely also revealed that "two or three" closed banks are in a position to reopen soon but he would not name them.

Olympic Village Becomes Madhouse of Melody

Los Angeles, July 22 (AP)—The music of the world, usually rollicking, sometimes boisterous and not necessarily very good, fills the Olympic village as 1000 athletes prepare hopefully for the 1932 games.

Moonlight nights find Latin Americans reclining in the "plaza" before their cottages strumming soft melodies on string instruments. Abdurman Ali, Moro swimmer, leads the strong-voiced Filipino section in new jazz hits. A high nasal song of the Japanese heralds victory.

Ville Porhola, Finnish shot putter, loves his singing of folk songs on a portable phonograph. The German team contributes drinking songs. Italians are given to operatic selections, the Americans to popular melodies.

Now all this city of champions needs is a couple of bagpipes.

The Whole Trend is toward a Milder Cigarette

Do you remember the days when you first started to smoke?

ALL CIGARETTES tasted somewhat alike to you, but after awhile you noticed that some cigarettes were decidedly stronger than others... Remember?

As smokers become more experienced, they demand milder cigarettes. Chesterfields are milder. There is no argument about that. Their mildness is a feature as distinctive as their package or their trade mark.

THIS IS LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IS THE ETERNAL GYPSY going to prove the efficacy of the American Melting Pot?

Twenty-five years ago everybody believed in the melting pot. Ministers preached about it, sociologists talked about it at summer schools of social ethics up and down the coast. The magazine writers told stories and quoted statistics to prove that out of the heterogeneity of the immigrant—then arriving at the rate of a million a year—would be born the homogeneity of the new American. I use that language because that is the way they talked about it.

PROF. ROGERS

Israel Zangwill got so excited that he wrote a play called "The Melting Pot," as silly a piece of melodrama as that age ever produced. And Theodore Roosevelt and Jake Riis and Fred Howe and all the progressives calculated that the millenium was about to lay an egg.

Goulash Turns Into Boiled Dinner

Came the war—as Griffiths used to say—and everybody got blue and doubtful. Somebody, Roosevelt or Wilson, invented the phrase "hyphenated American," and everybody whose family had been over for two generations got snooty about everybody whose family had been over for only one generation. All the really old American families were so pro-British and pro-French that they simply couldn't bear all the really new American families being pro-German or pro-Austrian or pro-Russian. The Melting Pot instead of becoming a proper goulash remained a boiled dinner, in which all the ingredients kept their identity and were so hot they burned the tongue.

But we quieted down on the new wave of prosperity. Mr. Red Lewis of Sauk Center, Wis. wrote a piece showing that the melting pot was really Main Street and another to show that the result of the melting pot was really Babbitt. There was some talk of passing a law to make all newly naturalized citizens wear black-rimmed spectacles as a sign that they were properly melted. And then Walter Winchell began to use the word "melted" as a polite term for divorce and we got all upset again.

But through it all the Gypsies tried to cling to the tradition of George Borrow and Konrad Berkovici. True, they began to exchange the old horse-drawn caravan for the Ford truck. Horse-chaffering gave way to second-hand motor-car dealing. Instead of the maddening strains of Gypsy fiddles, one heard from their woodsy encampments the blare of the Happy Hit dance orchestra.

It is doubtful whether their cooking pots breathed any longer the aroma of snared rabbit and partridge in the good old tradition, although an occasional strayed pullet might still nourish the traveler who supped with Gypsy John. But the little encampments still stood by the roadside, wherever the local chief of police was willing, and the old ladies told fortunes and the men wove baskets of sweet grass and the girls strayed through the business streets swindling unwary yokels with the old handkerchief trick and, occasionally, putting it over on a bank cashier.

* * *

Then America Changes It All

The wind on the heath was somewhat contaminated with factory smoke, but life was still sweet, brother, and who would wish to die?

The fact remains, however, that America has done something to the Gypsy that no other country has succeeded in doing. You can read of the Rumanian Gypsy, perhaps the most picturesque specimen of his ancient and mysterious race, in the tales of Berkovici. He has furnished the local color to dozens of English novels. Kipling has sung of him and Victor Herbert made sweet music about him—and her. Gypsy life and Gypsy love will still form the backbone of operetta and poetry. But the American Gypsy is saying good-bye to the old world and the old laws and is becoming a good American. Last week a Gypsy girl refused the marriage her father had arranged for her, with the usual dowry, and ran away from the camp. She found her way back to South Boston, where there was a boy she preferred and where the police picked her up as a stubborn child.

Over in Brooklyn the other day another bride disappeared. This time it was her family that was paying the dowry—an unheard-of arrangement in Gypsydom—and it was supposed to be a love match instead of a sale, according to the old custom. It was to be an international marriage, uniting the Russian Gypsies and the Canadian. Apparently the girl was American enough to handle things herself.

More important, the Brazilian Gypsies out in Detroit have elected an outsider as king. Some 8000 Gypsies from the East and West cast their ballots for a commoner, an American-born college graduate. Only the Mexican Gypsies, some 2500, wanted to carry on the old dynasty. The new king is a graduate of the College of the City of New York.

The new king is an absolute monarch, who intends to rule as a constitutional ruler for only ten years. He plans to Americanize his people as completely as possible.

Even Love Is to Be Americanized

The women are no longer to wear the flashy Gypsy dress, but the clothing of American women. Daughters are no longer to be sold by their fathers in marriage to the highest bidder for the purpose of cementing tribal alliances. They are to be as free as the American girl. Traditional Gypsy dishonesty is to be put down ruthlessly; the old, old practices of the horse trade, the handkerchief trick, the clothes line and hen-roost robbery are not to be countenanced.

There is to be education in Americanism. The young folks are to be taught trades and professions, instead of depending on fortune-telling and basket-making and horse-swapping. The new king is a Stanley, of the famous Stanley name, and the large vote he polled would seem to show that the Gypsies as a whole are in sympathy with his ideas and want to become assimilated.

It looks as if another tradition is passing. Europe, treating them as vagabonds but leaving them alone, made no dent in their ancient Egyptian culture for century after century. But America doesn't like to leave people alone. It loves to make them over. America would like to have everybody indistinguishable from everybody else. If it can succeed with the Gypsies, the theory of the melting pot is a success.

But will it succeed? We like to believe that the Gypsy instinct is tenacious beyond all instincts; that its blood is so old and unmixed that superficial civilities affect it not at all; that its culture is so much more than skin deep that no amount of reform will really change it. But the old Gypsies will pass. The young Gypsies, who have never known anything but American schooling and manners, will soon be in power.

It's-the old war between heredity and environment. The new king is betting on environment. The new king may win!

PENNSYLVANIA'S CONTROL IS SHATTERED

Mayor Predicts Great Jump in Export Business; Ely Is Pleased With Ruling

Mayor Curley today hailed as a signal victory for the city, the Boston Port Authority and the New England Governors' Committee, the decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission freeing the New England railroads from outside control.

He asserted the port of Boston would now be able to compete with other North Atlantic ports for a substantial portion of the export business of the nation.

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved the merger of all railroads east of the Mississippi, except in New England, into four systems headed by the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate.

MUST GET OUT OF N. E.

Mayor Curley said

"Counsel for the city of Boston and the port authority insisted that not only should the Pennsylvania be divorced from its control of New England roads, but that the great bridge lines, the Delaware & Hudson and the New York, Ontario & Western, be kept out of the merger and be available for New England lines. This the commission granted.

"It will be possible for the New England lines to gain an outlet to the great territory extending to the Mississippi river, and will afford an opportunity for New England to tie up with all the roads reaching to the great wheat centers of America.

"With the elimination of the Pennsylvania Railroad from its stifling control of the New England roads, it will now be possible for the New England roads to make such connections with all the great trunk lines in order to have an independent trunk line from New England to Chicago and the central part of the country.

Governor Ely said

"I regard the decision as very satisfactory. I would like to read the findings in full before making more extended comment."

Dudley Harmon, executive vice-president of the N. E. Council, pointed out that the major issue was to get the Pennsylvania out of New England, so that an impartial settlement of the problem of this section could be had.

The decision was branded "a sweeping victory" by Bentley W. Warren, counsel for the five governors (excluding Rhode Island), who waged the fight.

ELY IS DELIGHTED

"Grain travelling over the Great Lakes through the port of Oswego, N. Y., may be exported through Boston, and there will also be afforded an outlet for all exports from the central part of the country through Boston."

Governor Ely said

"I regard the decision as very satisfactory. I would like to read the findings in full before making more extended comment."

Dudley Harmon, executive vice-president of the N. E. Council, pointed out that the major issue was to get the Pennsylvania out of New England, so that an impartial settlement of the problem of this section could be had.

25,000 TO FACE GRILLING OVER JOBLESS AID

Police Ordered to Purge Lists of All Unworthy of the City Relief Doles

Action to rid the welfare list of "dole hogs" started today, under orders of Mayor Curley, who called on the whole police department for aid as the relief cost soared past the $1,000,000-a-month mark.

Full exposure of welfare racketeers by the Boston Evening American preceded the mayor's drastic orders.

Details of how the drive against these "meanest offenders" will be carried on were revealed today. More than 25,000 receiving city aid must be investigated to purge the list of the unworthy.

Chairman Simon E. Hecht of the overseers of the public welfare, tonight sends to Police Comm. Hultman a complete list of all those applying for aid today.

TO INVESTIGATE 25,000

He also sends to the police head a list of all those who have made application for the dole, but have not yet been investigated by the regular agents of the welfare department.

In addition to this, Secretary Walter V. McCarthy of the welfare board and his assistants began this morning making up the list of names of the entire 25,000 now receiving assistance.

He will be instructed to check up on the activities of the heads of these families to ascertain if they are spending the city's money for liquor, or if they appear to be absent from home at such times as to indicate they have regular day or night jobs.

SWINDLERS TO FACE COURT

The patrolmen will also be required to report on whether the members of the families ride in automobiles, and if so, whether the cars are their own.

"Under this system every unworthy recipient of assistance should be detected and apprehended," said Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman.

"There have been warnings that this sort of action was coming. If this type of offender is still known enough to remain on the welfare list, he will be prosecuted to the limit. I promise that."

What Has Gone Before

Spending a last evening with Mark Merriman before he sails for the Congo, Sondra Kent wonders how she can face five years of separation. But she will not marry him until he makes his fortune, she determines, as she has been brought up with one goal—the marrying of a millionaire. Also, she realizes she would not be happy in poverty, with "cheap clothes, a mean house and the eternal grind of trying to make ends meet on nothing a year." She has obtained his position from John Anderson, who loves her but cannot marry her because his wife will not divorce him. Sondra marries Mark secretly just before he sails for the Congo. She lunches with John.

Now Read On—

She was a little creature, fair and fluffy, with a passion for frilly clothes.

"Darling—how lovely to see you," she kissed Sondra's cheek. "And Mr. Anderson, too." She had what she called an "incurable passion" for John Anderson.

Beatrice irritated him, she reminded him of a tiresome insect which always returned to the attack, no matter how often and determinedly one brushed it away.

"Too lovely to see you," she said again to Sondra. "But you're so pale—isn't she, Mr. Anderson? Haven't you been well, and is that why you——"

Sondra interrupted calmly.

"Don't pretend, Bea dear, Mr. Anderson knows all about our little escapade—I told him that you and I had a disgracefully late night out together. I suppose that explains why I look such a rag this morning."

Beatrice looked blank, then suddenly she giggled—it always took her some time to see the point of anything.

"So you told him! Was he very shocked?" She looked archly up at Anderson's immovable face. "My poor little mother will hardly speak to me this morning," she gushed. "What did you do when you arrive home, Sondra? It must have been quite 5 o'clock."

"I understood that Sondra was out all night," Anderson said calmly. "And let me assure that I am not the least shocked. My education has been liberal."

BEATRICE GIGGLED

Beatrice giggled once more, and made a few vapid remarks before she rushed away again.

"Mr. Anderson always makes me feel so small and young," she explained afterwards to Sondra. "A mere child!"

There was a little silence when she had departed.

"I cannot tolerate that girl," Anderson said presently.

Sondra laughed. "Why not? She's quite harmless. I like her."

"She's such a shocking liar," Anderson answered calmly. "I don't object to people telling lies if they're forced to, but I do wish they'd do it in a convincing manner."

Sondra's eyes fell. She felt it was impossible to ask him to explain what he meant.

The air seemed fraught with an intangible "something" which she could not understand; or was it her own state of mind she misjudged it? Perhaps she was just imagining that there was an underlying knowledge in everything Anderson said.

Did he guess the truth? And if not, what would he say if she suddenly told him, "Mark and I were married yesterday."

Anderson spoke suddenly, as if reading her thoughts.

"I must send young Merriman a wire so he knows I wish him luck. I daresay he feels a bit hipped."

WHAT A HYPOCRITE!

"Oh, I don't think so."

What a hypocrite she was! Sondra felt as if she stood aside and stared at herself in shocked dismay.

"It's a good thing he's a single man," John said casually. "I always dislike wives being left behind when it means a long separation, as it probably does in Merriman's case."

EVERETT CHIEF SUES FOR JOB

Philip E. Ham, who was forced to retire as veteran chief of the Everett fire department two weeks ago, today began a battle in Supreme Court for reinstatement.

Ham, in a writ naming the three Everett fire commissioners, attributes his retirement to "political reasons."

James F. O'Connor, Thomas F. Hughes and John J. Breen are the fire commissioners. Ham claims the board retired him as being physically unfit on the basis of a report made by Dr. Benjamin Barton, city physician.

Three physicians who have since examined him have found him sound and capable, he claims. The commissioners and the city physician, he points out, are subject to removal by Mayor O'Neill.

AGED LIFER IN PARDON PLEA

The State Advisory Board of Pardons at the State Prison, Charlestown, gave hearing on the petition of Antonio Giannette, who is seeking a pardon. He is serving a life sentence in prison for second degree murder of Carmella Giannetti, whom he stabbed on September 15 1911, at Saugus. He was sentenced from the Essex County Superior Court on May 15, 1912 and has completed 20 years of his life sentence.

There was no opposition at the hearing to the granting of a pardon.

Giannette who is 62 years old asked the Board of Parole to grant him a pardon as he desired to go back to Italy where his wife and two sons are living.

BEATS WIFE FOR SPOILING PARTY

A beating administered by her husband because she had "spoiled a party by refusing to drink, won a divorce for Mrs. Roma Paul of Allston in Suffolk Probate Court today.

Mrs. Paul told Judge McCool that when she refused to follow an order by her husband that she take a drink, he ordered her to return home, where she was beaten.

Describing the attack, Mrs. Paul said that as her husband stepped into their apartment he pulled a telephone from the wall and struck her several times on the head.

She said she fled to another room and locked the door. Her husband kicked the door down and struck and choked her until she was semi-conscious, she said.

Mrs. Paul testified that as a result of the beating she was forced to remain in bed for seven days and that her husband finally came in the house one night, packed her suitcase and told her to get out. She said she had never returned to him.

ADMITS WEST END KILLING

An argument over which of the two could eat more led to the West End street battle in which Frederico Prizzio, 55, of Minot st., West End, was fatally stabbed, according to the confession of Pasquale Sciaraffa, 53, of Billerica st., held for the slaying.

Sciaraffa was arrested by police of the Joy st. station at Meridian and Havre sts., East Boston, late last night, as he was making his way to the home of his son. He admitted his identity and when he was returned to the Joy st. station confessed the killing.

In municipal court today, Sciaraffa pleaded not guilty, however, to the murder charge and was ordered held without bail for a hearing a week from today.

Sergt. John T. Clifford, who, with Special Officer Joseph McBrine, made the arrest, reported that Sciaraffa had confessed having an argument with Prizzio and claimed that he had thrown away the knife as he was fleeing down Nashua st. The weapon has not yet been found.

Woman Is Blocked in Natick Welfare List Probe

Miss Margaret V. McDermott, member of the Natick board of public welfare, charged that when she attempted to investigate conditions at the town infirmary she was rudely treated by Supt. John McGarry and ordered to leave.

Miss McDermott ran for election last March on the promise that she would investigate the Public Welfare Board to learn if the $70,000 spent last year and the $10,000 per month expenditures this year were going to the proper persons.

She said she related the facts to the Board of Public Welfare, which also includes P. H. Snow and Howard F. Leavitt, chairman, and demanded an apology from Mr. McGarry.

"I set a date limit in which Mr. Leavitt should secure this apology," her statement said. "The date limit passed and Mr. Leavitt has not secured an apology. His failure to do so left me the alternative of suffering in silence, or publicly bringing the facts to your attention in order that you may know them."

The statement was released for publication and was addressed to the citizens of Natick.

SUPERINTENDENT AWAY

Mrs. Bessie McGarry, wife of the poor farm superintendent said that her husband is in Maine on a fishing trip.

She claimed that Miss McDermott came in the back door of the poor farm on July 8 and started to interrogate inmates whom Mrs. McGarry accused of being "trouble makers." She claimed that some of these so-called trouble makers have been drinking.

Mrs. McGarry stated that her husband invited Miss McDermont into the office, but that she refused the invitation.

BOARD HEAD SILENT

Miss McDermott's version of her visit to the town infirmary differed from Mrs. McGarry's account. Miss McDermott made no mention of entering by the back door.

"The purpose of the visit," she said in her statement, "was to make an unexpected investigation of conditions there to see if the inmates were receiving food and care commensurate with the expenditure of your money."

Leavitt, chairman of the board of public welfare, declined to make any statement today. The board itself is being investigated by a committee of five citizens.

She was treated at Carney Hospital for severe contusions and then was allowed to go home.

CONCERT FUND LACKS $6700

Despite a deficit of $300 for the first 12 concerts, the Esplanade orchestra, under Director Arthur Fiedler, inaugurated the second series of concerts, last night, in the presence of an audience of 18,000 enthusiastic persons.

Approximately $6700 remains to be paid by contributors to insure completion of the season, but Fiedler expressed the belief that the music lovers of the city will rally to the cause.

Contributions were slow from the start, but of late have picked up considerably.

BUTTER BANDIT LOOTS STORE

A "butter-and-egg" bandit got $88 today in a holdup of the Associated Markets at 1283A Dorchester ave., Dorchester.

The bandit, short and stocky, entered the store a few minutes after it was opened this morning and ordered a pound of butter and a dozen eggs.

George Menalega, 210 C st., South Boston, the manager, put up the order and was tendered a $20 bill, which necessitated him opening the safe. Then the bandit produced a gun, took the safe contents and his own $20 and departed, leaving the butter and eggs.

YOUTH ESCAPES FROM CONCORD

Weikoski was sentenced from Holyoke last August for using a car without permission of the owner.

Then to the charms of popular dance music, the band will invite their clients at a charge of 10 cents per dance, to dance till the moon is set, as they do in the old waysside villages in old France and the gay cote of Osterville are expected to attend in force. BOOKS AND CHARACTERS

—By Lincoln Kirstein—

At the present time, when all ideas of economic theory of the past seem to be either tried to the breaking point, or denied by daily events, it is only natural that there should be an enormous focus of attention on any new plans or theories which will improve [illegible] tions enough to facilitate an actual recovery of business. The literature of new economics, planned societies, money reform and diagnoses of capitalist civilization by numerous private citizens of the United States, in their capacities as professors of political history and economic thought or as bond salesmen increases weekly, at an astonishing rate.

But the weight of private opinion however infallible the fulfillment of the prophecy of the individual [illegible] the weight of a demonstration of such theories in actual practice. The Russian experiment is still the most rewarding, puzzling and even in the variety of its facets the most illuminating focus of research for social and economic discussion that we have in the world today for here in all its human implications are one-sixth of the entire population of the world existing under conditions which are so revolutionary as to be held [illegible] impossible in the case of the world at large to such a degree that for United States of America to [illegible] to recognize the Union of Soviet Republics.

Unfortunately, as is always the case the irresponsible boards of personal prejudice pronounce [illegible] some opts information [illegible] interpreted as complete [illegible] of the particular point of view held renders the value of the opinion of most pseudonymic enemies and violent partisans of communism equally valueless.

Nor does the real truth of the matter necessarily fall neatly in between the two camps. The elements of the discussion are so complicated as to make no generalization possible except one which admits that the exact reverse of anything definitely stated in regard to Russia is also probably true.

Such an immensely valuable book has recently been published by Macmillan, called BOLSHEVISM: TERROR AND PRACTICE: a critical encyclopedia of Bolshevism, giving its historical and social background, the history of the actual Russian revolution, the economic and social policy of the present, a description of the mechanics of the Bolshevik party and its leaders and transcriptions of actual documents. These last are among the most interesting sections of an invaluable book, for here we have the historic opinions of the leaders in their own words, free from misrepre[illegible] now being presented in a critical context. Here are extracts from the pamphlet Lenin wrote in 1905, WHAT IS TO BE DONE? The [illegible] tions, [illegible] tinal dogmas of Bolshevism and his exciting and bitter attack on the Socialist opportunists of 1905.

CRITICISM TRANSLATED

There are translations of the vigorous criticism published in the leading newspaper of Russia of the automobile industry; the breakdown of the program which had guaranteed certain results at certain times.

But by far the most serious and lasting contribution of this fascinating and most readable encyclopedia is its searching criticism of [illegible] and [illegible] the Bolshevik [illegible] ler this book the most formidable opposition in print they have [illegible] received, and this is no mean [illegible].

At Guiran does not stoop to attack them on the basis of melodramatic outrages, wholesale massacres, etc., which as he says can be countered by their citations of various colonial misdemeanors on the part of imperialist governments [illegible] and [illegible] as [illegible] future [illegible] against [illegible] an [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible].

And he also does not permit the argument that the reason for numerous failures, inconsistencies and inefficiencies in the Bolshevik regime are due to the fact that the country is in a state of transition that when things adjust themselves in the normal events of [illegible] and experience all will be [illegible] according to the tenets of the Communist Manifesto.

GOES DEEP FOR ISSUE

Mr. Guiran's quarrel is not with private individuals, or even, in the last analysis, with party politics. His disagreement is fundamental, springing from an attitude about human nature. He demonstrates that all actual attempts of work [illegible] sake of work organized on the basis of a quantitative [illegible] has only its own tension to support and that the dictatorship of the governing bureaucracy is based on considerations of personal power and political expediency as any other capitalist country. He says that the abolition of any distinction between the state and society is the crux of the failure, because the destruction of this distinction renders such a separation meaningless—for anybody who believes that politics that is the differences of opinion for action, is a profoundly living force.

The Bolsheviks have set up economic and [illegible] [illegible] to make a powerful foe. And hence Gurian feels, they have made economics and the governing of that bureaucracy merely political, subject to the changes that must crack any rigid political theory, as opposed to an idea of government flexible enough to absorb rather [illegible] [illegible] individual. A reading of this book is absolutely necessary to anyone who wishes to really comprehend these vital opposites.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

For a long time having loafed down Long Island and ambled through Acadia, I have had the notion that I should like to cycle through Connecticut. But on my recent walks through the curving roads of this charming state I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that times have changed and the plan is not feasible.

The motorists have it their own way. Horses are seldom seen and pedestrians are very much of a nuisance. A cyclist would be an anachronism. He would look like a man trying to fight a war with a Revolutionary bayonet. It simply cannot be done. And I must say that if I were a motorist myself, I would resent a cyclist as farmers resent a plague of locusts.

• • •

Yet I do think it is a pity not to be able to go at the pace one prefers. Motorists have some respect for crashing motorcyclists, but these latter are in a class by themselves. I confess I have never understood them, goggled and silent, almost [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] beings than fiends incarnate, pushing their way through the thickest traffic, [illegible] [illegible] streams of motors, sometimes ignoring red and green lights, dashing on their inconsequential way, seeing nothing of the beauties of nature as they plug along our highways.

They take unbelievable risks, they actually court sudden death; yet because they are in a hurry, and have sirens, and look dangerous, they command attention.

A plodding cyclist would exist their disdain; and though I might dread the speeding automobilists, I should dread a single motorcyclist more. He would look upon my creeping wheel as an unheard-of impertinence.

Now, your old-time cyclist was a companionable fellow. He lolled, every few miles, on the grass beside the road, and perhaps read a book, and sooner or later a stranger might join him taking his ease, and forthwith they would be friends, linked in the bond of brotherhood and free-masonry that resulted in the ownership of the same make of wheel.

"What you ride a Columbia, too!" the first lolling cyclist would exclaim. "It's the only one that's any good. And thereafter they was much to discuss—century runs, tires that required scant attention, chains that held on the long upgrades.

But the motorcyclist is a terrifying and wholly unsociable being. He looks neither to the right nor the left. For him to pause, except in the case of a breakdown, is in the nature of effeminacy. And if by chance, he carries his wife or his best girl in one of those curious tubs at his side, I have yet to see him pay any attention to her. The tandem wheel of the distant days was a talkfest compared to the motorcyclist out with his Jane. She sits in anguished solitude, goggled like her knight, but cruelly obliterated from his mind. She is so much excess baggage. She retards his progress. A motorcyclist thus encumbered invariably wears an expression of fury—that is, if he pauses long enough to allow you a glimpse of his features. He prefers solo speeding. He knows nothing of the joys of companionship on his flight over the roads.

But the curving, stone-bordered roads of Connecticut lure me every day, and I have managed, thus far, to keep out of the way of the horrible motorcyclist. Once, though, I have a way of swooping down upon me out of nowhere. They swing around turns like performers in a circus and must be horribly shaken up at the end of their journey.

They have kept me off my quiet wheel on the roads, and so, like the snake in the garden that rids it of little bugs, they may have their uses. But the little bugs must have some reason for being or they wouldn't have been created. It is all too puzzling and mysterious for me.

Crane Estate Lecture Scene

The rector of the Ascension Memorial Church at Ipswich, the Rev. Carroll Perry, who is well known for the excellent lectures he delivers annually for the benefit of charitable and worthy organizations, today gives his first in a series of lectures at "Castle Hill," the magnificent summer estate belonging to Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago. The lecture was on "The Life and Art of Edwin Booth."

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be handed over to the Benjamin Stickney Cable Memorial Hospital at Ipswich. Mrs. Crane is greatly interested in the welfare of this hospital, and is putting in her efforts to assist in its maintenance. She has arranged another lecture to be given at Castle Hill on July 29. On this occasion Mr. George Brewer, Jr., is going to speak on "The American Theater Today and the Education of an Audience."

Mrs. Bill Gives Clambake

Mrs. Nathan Bill, the mother of Mrs. Fritz B. Talbot, who comes over from Springueld every summer to her house at Wenham, and to hear her daughter, is always a welcome arrival, as everyone knows that before long they will be invited to her annual clambake, which is an event keenly anticipated by her friends.

As soon as Mrs. Bill's invitations arrive, as they did not long ago, all other engagements are broken, and those that are bidden flock to her board. On the shores of Cedar Harbor, in old house, which has been put in repair and [illegible] in the fashionable repast is enjoyed. A long, narrow table reaches from end to end under the slanting roof of this quaint old building and the guests seat themselves along each side to partake of a repast that is something quite out of the common.

Mrs. Bill is an artist at old time baking, and every course she serves to her guests are true bakes. In the preparation of these dishes are made in the ground and the pots are well covered with seaweed, lobsters, clams, sweet potatoes, corn, cabbages and even the oysters, a unique method for this latter delicacy, and they are baked to a nicety, the only dish that escaped the pot is the watermelon.

The decorations for the feast were appropriately made up from fish nets that were hung in festoons all around the barn. The waiters were dressed in neat blue overalls, and the men who handled the bake were rigged up in fresh fishing garb.

COMPLETED QUESTION

On the other hand there are a group of people in this country who, owing to their liberal attitude, or their sporting interest in the under-dog, or because, dissatisfied with their present affairs, interest themselves in any other plan which seems to be working in some definite order, are definitely sympathetic partisans of the Russian experiment and even suggest similar revolutionary measures be taken in America to regain order in corrupt government and prosperity over depression.

Unfortunately, as is always the case the irresponsible boards of personal prejudice pronounce [illegible] some opts information [illegible] interpreted as complete [illegible] of the particular point of view held renders the value of the opinion of most pseudonymic enemies and violent partisans of communism equally valueless.

Nor does the real truth of the matter necessarily fall neatly in between the two camps. The elements of the discussion are so complicated as to make no generalization possible except one which admits that the exact reverse of anything definitely stated in regard to Russia is also probably true.

Such an immensely valuable book has recently been published by Macmillan, called BOLSHEVISM: TERROR AND PRACTICE: a critical encyclopedia of Bolshevism, giving its historical and social background, the history of the actual Russian revolution, the economic and social policy of the present, a description of the mechanics of the Bolshevik party and its leaders and transcriptions of actual documents. These last are among the most interesting sections of an invaluable book, for

WHAT'S A FULL LIFE? ASKS ELSIE ROBINSON

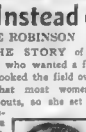
By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S THE STORY of a modern woman who wanted a full life. She had looked the field over and decided that most women's lives are wash-outs, so she set to work deliberately to make a success of hers. And then, one night—



Elsie Robinson

But read it for yourself. It's Big Medicine.

Dear Miss Robinson—

I wonder if my story would be of any help to the thousands of discontented women who write to your column. I know why they are discontented. I was that way once, too. And I found my cure in the last place I expected.

The whole thing started before my marriage. I was 23; my husband 25. We both came from nice homes, had good educations, held fine jobs, with futures.

We were much in love, but we were cynical young moderns and we thought that marriage was a trap for most young people. We decided we wouldn't be caught. So we made a plan.

We agreed that I should go on working after we were married, and should have the career upon which I had started. In that way, we would both stay vitally interested in life and would never bore each other.

Also, by that plan we could have many luxuries and pleasures which we could not have if I gave up my work. That would keep us both young, and prevent that drabness which seems to fall on so many married people.

Some day we planned to have babies and live in the country, but that was only after I had enjoyed my freedom and professional success to the full.

So we started, as so many other "smart" young Americans are doing, and for a while it seemed to work beautifully. Several years went on. We grew more and more prosperous. Then, gradually, I began to notice a change creeping over us.

In spite of all our well laid plans, we were becoming bored with each other! We had lost our zest for parties, or were too busy to enjoy them. Night after night my husband would come home, sit silent through dinner, then bury himself in a paper and pay no attention to me.

At first I was surprised, then humiliated and sorry for myself. Then I became really angry. But none of my moods had any effect on him. AND I WAS FORCED TO REALIZE THAT IF WE WENT ON AS WE WERE DOING I WOULD LOSE MY HUSBAND.

I had to face the choice which so many modern women must make—A HOME OR A CAREER? I had thought that by keeping my career I would make myself and my home more attractive. I now discovered the amazing fact that my husband found no interest in the sort of a home which a career-woman could make. It was a beautiful and efficient home—but it meant nothing to him. Why?

It took me a long time to answer that question. Maybe I didn't really want to answer it; but at last I had to face it. The truth was, my husband wasn't interested in our home because HE HAD NO PLACE IN IT. He lived there, slept and ate there, paid some of the bills—

BUT THE HOME DIDN'T DEPEND ON HIM, AND NEITHER DID IT. NEITHER THE HOME NOR I WAS HIS PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY OR ADVENTURE. AND SO HE WAS DRIFTING AWAY FROM US BOTH!

Once that was what I had to face. I had wanted a full life, but I found I couldn't get it by working on two jobs at once. I had to be either wife-time wife, or whole-time careerist. And would a career satisfy, if I lost the man I loved?

I didn't think it would; and so I made my step. We came here into the country. We found a little ranch, close enough for him to go to work, and I gave up my job and went in for gardening.

I NEARLY DIED OF BOREDOM AND LONELINESS AT FIRST; but within a week my husband was a changed man. He found that he liked to tinker in the garden. He came racing home at night, as excited as a boy.

Well, it's a long story. But I saved my home, and I don't think there's a happier couple on earth than we are now. We're real farmers, on a larger place. We have three children—the greatest youngsters! We aren't making much money but, on the other hand, neither are we spending much. And the days aren't long enough to hold all our joy. THIS IS THE FULL LIFE!

MARY OWENS.

So that's that, Ann! I wonder how many tired business women will prop their elbows on their desks and forget about the next contract, while they sit and think it over.

Girl Is Well Rid of Her Suitor

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For three years I went with a young man constantly. He was insanely jealous and got very angry when I went anywhere with anyone else. I concluded because he was jealous he must be in love with me now there is no connection between the two states. The situation got on my nerves, so one evening that seemed favorable to me, I told the young man I loved him, had loved him for three years.

"I knew it," was all he said, then lighted a cigarette. That made me good and mad, so I said: "What does it mean to you?" He said; "I have no intention of marrying anyone. I'm not a marrying man. If you expect our friendship to lead to marriage, we'd better quit."

So then and there I decided to quit. He hasn't even called me up since, and I hear he's picked out another girl. What do you think of my case?

BARBARA.

Dear Barbara: A vacant house is better than a poor tenant, says an old saw. And the same wisdom might be applied to one of those affairs like yours, where a man monopolizes a girl's time, is jealous if she goes with anyone else, and yet never "said the hard word," as the Irish describe a proposal. As you expect to marry, you're well rid of a stalling suitor such as you describe.

Stops Loving

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a young man of 27, have been in love several times, engaged twice, and am still a bachelor. When I tell you the reason you'll probably toss my letter in the scrap basket, and really I've no excuse to offer. Perhaps I'm off from the regulation type, but here's my story. I fall in love easily. I'm susceptible, in fact. But when a girl begins to fall in love with me I lose interest in her. It was difficult for me to break with one of the girls to whom I was engaged. She cared a good deal, and thought everything would come out right if we married, but I couldn't go through with it. Why, in your opinion, do I lose interest in girls when they become interested in me?

DONALD K.

Dear Donald: You haven't really fallen genuinely in love yet, my dear young man. Your type of case which has been described as "honey sipping at every flower"—and you're still seeking the perfect flower. But do restrain yourself from going to the extent of becoming engaged. It is cruel in the extreme to break an engagement, particularly when the man does the breaking, and sometimes fathers and big brothers do ugly and impulsive things to young men who sidestep the altar after a betrothal has been announced. Don't commit yourself in future unless you're positive you've found the right one, and then watch your step.

Heavy linen, lined with terry cloth—which gives warmth and thickness, yet may be laundered—makes the Fauvety tailored coat shown in the sketch. All seams and edgings are marked by double stitchings, in the tailored manner. The linen which fashions the coat, of the coarse uncrushable variety, is in blue; the terry cloth lining is white. The accompanying dress, also from Fauvety, is of wide-wale pique, which gives the effect of a cotton corduroy. The fabric is cut so that many of the lines take diagonal directions, slanting inward toward the waistline.

Hints From the Ever-Handy Beauty Box

ALCOHOL and castor oil, equal parts, form a first class medium for that old tired scalp of the scalp which should be given the night before the shampoo. In castor oil are elements that coax dandruff to remove itself from the premises. Kill the odor by adding a few drops of perfume.

NOT MUCH can be done about a large nose unless it goes to the facial surgeon for a trimming. But dark powder will make it appear less rosy and the right shape of the hat can flatter it somewhat. The middle parting of the coiffure is not for the gal who has an overdeveloped proboscis.

Wife Was Fat No Longer Attractive Lost Husband's Love

If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting down on fatty and fatty foods and go easy on potatoes, butter cream and sugar. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

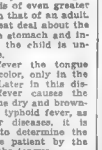
Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 mineral salts most helpful to those losing fat. First of all a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Ask any druggist for a bottle and start to lose fat today.

It's the safe way to reduce but be sure you get Kruschen—your health comes first and remember that if you are not perfectly satisfied with results—money back.

Tongue Index of Health in Many Cases

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MUCH can be learned from an examination of the tongue. Prior to the discovery of the X-ray and other modern methods of diagnosis, the physician relied upon the appearance of the tongue, regarding it as an index of health. Years of experience taught these old time practitioners many secrets concerning health and disease, secrets that are often overlooked.



Dr. Copeland

As a medical student I was taught that the examination of a patient was not complete without a careful study of the tongue. I can almost hear my professor as he repeated over and over again that the tongue was a signpost in many diseases.

Careful scrutiny of the tongue of a sick child is of even greater importance than that of an adult. It will tell a great deal about the condition of the stomach and intestines, things the child is unable to describe.

In typhoid fever the tongue has a reddish color, only in the early stages. Later in this disease a high fever causes the tongue to become dry and brownish in color. In typhoid fever, as in many other diseases, it is often possible to determine the progress of the patient by the appearance of the tongue.

In kidney diseases, the moisture of the tongue is important. A moist, clean, healthy-looking tongue need never cause alarm, but a tongue that is dry, hard, cracked and coated means that there is some disturbance in the body. It may be due to an infectious disease, to an intestinal disturbance, or to faulty kidney action.

The Latest in Fashions

A MATTER OF TASTE and not fashion is the principal requirement when it comes to evening pajamas. But the smartest women prefer to don them only when entertaining in the privacy of their own homes. Cut just like an evening frock is a one piece pyjama of white mousseline de soie with a tiny blue embroidered dot. There is a blue velvet coat lined with white velvet.

BE FRILLY but be careful not to destroy the neat silhouette that is the line of the season. An evening frock of black mousseline de soie, cut on tailored lines goes feminine by using frilly ruchings of the material applied in vertical lines on the skirt. The ruches are also used as shoulder straps and there is a glary silver metal belt.

Planning for the Daily Dessert

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

WE MAY BE ABLE to decide, without too much strain on the old mental machinery, whether our main dinner dish shall be fish, flesh or fowl, but the daily dessert question is often a puzzler. Cantaloupe and ice cream, and fruit shortcakes are repeated to the point of saturation.—whatever that means—and we paw the listless air our cook books, madly searching for something that's not too much work and not too expensive, yet attractive enough to tempt capricious hot-weather appetites.

Here are four of the three cold desserts that I've chosen for you today to help answer this dessert question. They bear repeating methinks. And best of all, they can be prepared in the morning, or even the day before.

CHERRY PIE
(Six servings)

Soak together for about 5 minutes, 1 level tbsp. gelatin, and ¼ cup cold water. Heat the following ingredients together to the boiling point: 1½ cups cherries (canned, frozen or fresh) ½ cup cherry juice or water, ¾ cup sugar 2 tbsps. lemon juice, ½ tsp. salt. Add softened gelatine to hot cherry mixture and blend together thoroughly. Cool mixture and when cold and starting to thicken fill a baked pie shell. Put filled pie in refrigerator or in a cold place to chill. Before serving garnish pie with a thin layer of whipped cream.

RASPBERRY REFRIGERATOR CAKE
(Six servings)

Soak together for about 5 minutes, 1 level tbsp. gelatine and ¼ cup cold water. Heat the following ingredients together to the boiling point: 1 cup raspberries (crushed), ¼ cup raspberry juice or water, ½ cup sugar, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt. Add softened gelatine to hot raspberry mixture, blending together thoroughly. Cool mixture and when cold and just starting to thicken, fold in 1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped (measure before whipping). Rinse loaf pan or melon shaped mold in cold water. Fill one-third full with raspberry mixture. On this layer of dessert place a layer of lady fingers or thin slices of cake. Then fill mold 2-3 full with raspberry mixture and on this arrange another layer of lady fingers or cake. Fill mold with raspberry mixture. Put filled mold in a refrigerator or in a cold place to chill. To serve unmold dessert on plate and garnish with whipped cream, whole raspberries and lady fingers.

CHOCOLATE CREAM PIE
(Six Servings)

Soak together for about five minutes 1 level tbsp. gelatine and ¼ cup cold water. Cook the following ingredients together until mixture is smooth (about 5 minutes): ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup or 2 squares melted chocolate, 1 cup hot milk, ¼ tsp. salt. Dissolve or liquify softened gelatine over boiling water and add to hot chocolate mixture. Blend together thoroughly. Cool, and when cold and starting to thicken fold in 1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whiped (measure before whipping) and 1 tsp. vanilla. Fill baked pie shell with chocolate mixture. Put filled pie in refrigerator or in cold place to chill. Before serving if desired, garnish with a thin layer of whipped cream.

Daily True Story

'Sportsmanship'

"THERE ARE TWO virtues I adore in a man," gurgled Muriel Pennelly, as she dressed for the big fight, "loyalty and sportsmanship."

"I see," retaliated Frances Merwin. "You're falling in love with a dumb prize-fighter. Is that why you're going to the Bowl?"

"Don't be a persimmons," Muriel snorted back. "I'm going there with Jack—Jack Garden. He's crazy about fights. Besides I expect him to pop the question tonight."

"Oh, yeah! And I suppose you'll bury your head in his lap and shed a few onion tears and nod your head in astonished acceptance."

"Nothing of the kind. I haven't made up my mind yet—because, well I haven't ever seen him in a real character test. But its pleasant to hear the question anyways."

Jack possessed a natural ardor for all types of sports, but he was a good prize-fight that served to bring out all his animated spirits. On the ride toward the arena, Jack was loquacious with enthusiasm.

SEES THE FIGHT

"It ought to be a real slaughter," he informed his companion, "two lusty fighters, each rarin' to murder the other."

"Oh, my gosh, I'm shuddering already," chimed in Muriel.

"But I think 'Killer' Burns will knock out the 'Spanish Bull,'" he continued, "in fact, I placed a little bet on him. It'll be a neat egg, you know, or a hope chest, or whatever you call it," he added with a wink.

Muriel lowered her eye-brows because she had long eyelashes and also because she knew that an assumed bashfulness is the best process of dodging an issue and putting the burden of the ordeal on the party of the second part.

"Well, I hope you do," she replied with a wink emulating his.

"You're a great kid," he commented apropos of nothing in particular as they parked the car and began their walk to the scene of the encounter.

They watched the battle together. It was a good fight. Blows rained in lightning succession—blows that constricted Muriel's heart every time she heard the pounding noise as they connected with a part of the human anatomy. As to Jack even Muriel's arms couldn't keep him down in his seat.

WINS THE BET

As the rounds wore on, a touch of disappointment became evident in Jack's voice. Having a knockout, he had it figured the decision would go to the Spaniard.

"I would put my dough on that onion," he scornfully remarked.

Another ten minutes and the fight was over. The referee turned to "Killer" Burns. He lifted his right hand. "The Winnah," he boomed.

"Yeah, Killer," he shrieked. Muriel was silent.

"But what do YOU think?" persisted Muriel.

Silence for a while as the car glided along the smooth concrete. Then, again Muriel asked.

"I won a hundred dollars."

"Will you collect it?"

"Certainly, that's the official ruling."

"But how about your sportsmanship?"

Muriel reddened, although Jack could not notice it in the darkness.

"I think I know about these things as much as any man. What do you mean by even saying such a thing?"

The rest of the conversation need not be recorded. Do two stubborn people—especially when they are young and of opposite sex—ever yield?

Frances was in bed reading a book when Muriel came in

"Well, did he pop the question?"

"Isn't that too bad"" commiserated Frances.

"Not at all. Not at all. Because I have made up my mind anyway."

"Ah, knocked out by Cupid. Did he cast eyes at another blonde?"

"No—it wasn't on the loyalty count that he lost the decision in my heart. Besides, I never liked his way of smiling anyway. He looks so optimistic and so—selfish."

FAITHFUL CHEAT

John Presents Sondra With $1000 Cash

"Isn't that rather hard? Why shouldn't men who have to work abroad be married?"

"'Abroad' is a rather vague term. I was speaking of men who have to go where young Merriman has gone. It is not a woman's country, as you know."

"And I. . . . if Mark had been a married man?" Sondra asked.

He looked at her steadily.

"If Merriman had been a married man, I shouldn't have given him the job," he said.

It was not until late that evening, when Sondra was dressing for dinner, that she remembered the letter which John Anderson had given to her that morning.

SHE HAD FORGOTTEN IT

She had slipped it into her bag and had forgotten it.

The second queer and severe attack of the way in which life had changed during the past 24 hours.

She had even forgotten that her dressmaker was pressing for payment—she had forgotten everything except that with every moment the distance between her and Mark Merriman was increasing by hopeless miles. She took up the little handbag.

The letter was still there, careless, crushed. It did if it was something of no importance.

Sondra tore the flap open without even pausing.

What did it matter whether she were pretty gowns or not? There was no longer anybody in town she cared to please.

Now, she'd ever believe her? She tried to think of a letter to send to Mark—such a letter as would never be answering people would believe. Mark knew that she never—Anderson did never—had anything of her—probably never would have.

AN UNUSUAL AFFECTION

It was so unusual that even young man gave generously not the hope of return.

Mark would be home—I think would never understand. She could imagine his indignation.

She can be would come back—and what then?

For the last time Sondra looked honestly into the future and tried to realize what life would be then—if ever Mark came home.

She knew that if he made money still would probably be well, but if not—if he came back as he went away poor, without prospects—what would become of them?

Could she face life in a suburban house even with his love? She hoped that she could not.

There was always John, who would do anything for her—and he would go to Mark's future. Influence would so much nowadays; the thing, I confronted her.

(To-morrow Mark would get on. He would make a position in the world and then, would find happiness to go her.

As I in the meantime.

It was not yet 24 hours since they had said goodbye and already it seemed as if it was years ago that she had stood on the pier trying to hide from the world that Mark meant anything more to her than just an ordinary friend who was going abroad.

Not yet 24 hours! and it might be five years before they met again.

Was it possible to still love a man passionately, whom one had not seen for five years? People changed so. Mark might grow stout or bald . . . she smiled incongruously at the thought.

FIVE SUMMERS

Five years! Five summers, five winters, five glorious springs, and it was to Mark. She was his wife then, and they had lived together for only a few short hours. . . he would be a stranger.

Suddenly she remembered the letter in her hand. She tore it open and read it.

"Would you marry him if he were free?" Flora demanded. 'No.'

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

BROADWAY MERRY-GO-ROUND!

They change the melodies on this merry-go-round calliope each week—but if you'll listen closely you'll notice they're always torchy, for Broadway's maudlinly sentimental and romantic down deep in its foolish heart. Well, at any rate, were off again on our carrousel ride, and now that we're in full swing, take a look at Harry Richman cutting some no prouday there. Back in the swim is Harry—with his radio and stage activities—and his voice has never been better. Richman is like Broadway maudlinly sentimental and bizarrely romantic, and it's due to have rolled him in the dough but he's reformed on the surface, at least—and gotten down to business. Such romancing as his nature demands he is now conducting more or less in the pianistic manner instead of in the blatantly open, widely publicized manner of old. The fellow's still a baby—for instance, the other day he bought dresses and about $500 worth of socks with fur tops and silk tassels and what-nots. And he still goes for mirrors on the ceilings, but you can forgive the lad almost anything so long as he has that golden voice.

And now the Gaiety Theater [illegible] distinguished and [illegible] productions [illegible] Amazing [illegible] what was [illegible] distinguished and [illegible] form of entertainment—was and still is considered—and yet I've seen people like Otto Kahn, Beatrice Lillie, Adele Astaire, Lee Shubert, Jed Harris and others in the audiences giggling at the strip numbers and applauding the putty-nosed, funny-slapstick comedians. Strange too, although not a new thought that there seem don't be a [illegible] to [illegible] Broadway should [illegible]

Of Peter Dixon [illegible] you may [illegible] what you've been telling me on the merits of [illegible] her looks of [illegible] Gaiety [illegible] of her [illegible] to [illegible] her [illegible] But [illegible] could have to be [illegible] that [illegible] at least say [illegible] pop a [illegible] front [illegible] could be [illegible] pushed to [illegible] [illegible] Take [illegible] the Life [illegible] Walsh [illegible] [illegible] Light and the world [illegible] with you weep and we'll weep alone and so on and so on [illegible] may have noticed the sweet [illegible] appeared in public places [illegible] as the rest of them. Last Thursday night for instance, at the Paul Ralph [illegible] she never seemed more [illegible] her old self full of [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] leaned over and said to Belle's escort, Walter Reed, forgotten [illegible] "I'm laughing and pretending to enjoy myself but Maury's [illegible] Belle's [illegible] husband, estranged [illegible] over there on Broadway. Looks a lot like him, [illegible] Dempsey's pal Wee [illegible] Jack Howard and [illegible] Dempsey [illegible] Jack and Lyda Basquette, and [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] true—and it still doesn't go [illegible] far as I'm concerned. Do you want to know something? Dempsey is [illegible] Estelle Taylor [illegible] anybody tell you differently. He talks about her constantly—and now he's arranging to turn over $35,000 in good bonds to her—exactly why, I don't know; but take my word for it, it's true.

I must tell you about this fellow, Joe Lewis, one of the few natural comedians in town, now master of ceremonies at the Herrick Road place known as La Casa. Of his [illegible] [illegible] is slashing by [illegible] in Chicago has miraculous [illegible] you all know. Every column [illegible] written about [illegible] have been front page stories [illegible] it. He still bears the scars of that gruesome experience—and a silver plate in his head, but you know what they say about the eyes of men who have suffered? How they reflect the torture [illegible] the smiles on the lips? Well, you can look far and deep into the eyes of Joe and you'll find nothing of the sort there—the boy's happy—and thankful that he's alive and in full possession again of all his faculties. And he's nobody's fool—for he's saved his money and who [illegible] Look at [illegible] and [illegible] the custodian of his funds? A dentist out in Chicago. Joe [illegible] sends him the money and let the fellow invest it or bank it or do anything he cares to—and his trust hasn't been misplaced.

That fellow rushing through the crowd there looks plenty like Jimmy Carney, but I honestly don't know whether he's in town or not and it doesn't make much difference but it wasn't so many years ago when he was a member—an obscure member—of the cast of "Fifty Fifty" and wore striped trousers, a linen vest and an oxford coat bound with braid. As one girl reviewer put it, he did a few "Mickey" dance with his wife who was a chorus girl in the production, but more interesting to me is the fact that the star then was a little fellow—just as short, if not shorter, than Jimmy—named Ernest Truex and there's no record that he and Carney, who was just a step—half a step—higher than a chorus boy, fraternized. Well, of course, Truex is still a star and will be—but, right at this moment, the chances are that 100 out of 100 people you meet could tell you who Jimmy Carney is—while I doubt that more than 25 would know exactly who Truex is. Particularly, out of town. There's no moral in this—it's just one of the cute pranks of fate that make life so eternally fascinating. It's what keeps most of us from jumping off roofs—it's the inspiration of the Salvation Army's slogan about a man being down but never out. There's something stirring and encouraging about the uncertainty of life. A starving prisoner becomes dictator—Mussolini. A penniless lawyer becomes a President and martyr—Lincoln. A singing waiter becomes the nation's outstanding song-writer — Irving Brlin. An overfat girl—ridiculed by her schoolmates—becomes an outstanding radio star—Kate Smith. A boy guiding a horse pulling a canal boat becomes a schoolteacher—and then President and, like Lincoln, a martyr—Garfield.

Satan Is Summoned in Weird Experiment on German Mountain Peak to Discourage Superstition —BUT— Devil Fails to Appear Despite All Inducements

ONE of the most unusual experiments ever performed in modern times was carried out late last month by several English and German leaders of psychical research. It was held on the Brocken Mountain, a peak in the Hartz range in Germany.

Back in the Middle Ages this peak was supposed to be the favorite exit of Satan from his fiery home.

Members of some cults still believe that evil spirits have their abode there. And the rapid increase of such cults prompted the scientists to conduct the mystic experiment which, if successful, would have "raised the devil."

Satan, of course, did not appear.

But the experiment—with its magical gestures and ancient incantations—was undoubtedly the strangest performance ever planned in our day.

Complete details of the weird rites are described in one of the articles in next Sunday's American Weekly. Be sure to read it. It'll thrill you!

Girl About Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

Going Places:

Last night at Braves Field, during the seating of the mob, an Irish officer staged a foxy prologue . . . He was guarding a gate to the open field . . . Wouldn't let anyone through—but obliged by pointing out a good spot where they could vault the fence! . . . First one he suggested this to was Bibber McCoy . . . Lynn's bronzed-up Eydie Welch, with rakish felt hat tipped just so over his stunning gray locks, was turning all the corners . . . Soprano Selma La Rochelle, as brown as a coffee bean, back from New Hampshire for the wrestling rumpus . . . Her hubby eagle-eyeing it by her side . . . J. Harold Sullivan as close to the ring as possible . . . Big Dan Carroll hot-footing it away before the crowd broke . . . With Mrs. Dan, tiny-stepping it and trying to keep up . . . We didn't arrive until the featured match . . . Catching our first glimpse of the huge crowd of good fellows who had turned out for the American's benefit show, we were thrilled to see depression or no—even in July, that those hungry babies and their grownups, who pop up in such numbers in the Yuletide, would be assured of the Boston American's helping hand again this year . . . And I'm sure was a great show . . . Plenty of action, vaudeville-comedy thrown in, fighting, referee-mixing, boxing and—what not and the satisfaction that with it all they'd all done their bit!

Garrulous Gabbing:

Revere's Morton Cold-time fighter and referee) Clougherty's wife has been known to get up in the middle of the night to turn out a pot of her famous fresh biscuits for fighters and wrestlers she's yenny abou, who yen for fresh biscuits . . . Irish devotion!

Get Booker Johnnie Connolly's dad to tell you how he was a royal guest for an all-night and special concert while aboard a Gotham-to-Boston boat the night before Vincent "Lopez Speaking" appeared here last at the "Met" . . . The Cohen brothers of Chelsea, Harold and his barrister relative, Samuel will race each other to the altar in the fall . . . Brookline's Ethe. Marionson and Lawyer "Pooch" Schrodin in will be quietly knotted in September . . . Henry Taylor, well tailored and with the approval of the always faultlessly garbed Len Libbey will turn his back Sunday on his managerial maneuverings at the "Met" for his annual pleasdring . . . As usual, it's Amesbury Park . . . Even at a Paramount-Publix luncheon Providence's capable publicity lady Eva Duhammil, neglected not to rave about her finance Dick Farrell and assure us that the "they're already married" rumor is just a rumor and that it'll be another year yet before she wears that plain gold band . . . But that jeweled guard ring looks a mite too wide for a sure-nuff guard to us!

Surprised

Cambridge's Walker sisters, who summer on their farm each year down Plymouth way, simply amaze some of their neighbors because of the grown they wear. Seem to have ever an old Cleveland car they bought for $25 two summers ago . . . They never thought Lydia (who dabbles with miniature stage sets) and Mary (who's an exceptional portrait artist) would pull that stunt that first summer in, their anti-quated model? . . . And they were completely baffled when at the beginning of this summer one of their neighbor ladies saw them waiting at the station and asked them if they were waiting for the bus . . . To he answered with "No, we're waiting for our car to be brought around! . . . Such elegant confidence! . . . The Cleveland is doing right well to date . . . Must be the Cape air

Travelers' Pickups:

Malden's Rufina Anderson went to Europe for a vacation . . . Instead, during this month, she's dancing in famous ballet master Leo Staats' Paris Opera Ballet at the Casino in Monte Carlo! . . . And in her spare moments she's bicycles through the forests near Chartres . . . Rufina's not much different than those vacationing motormen who ride on the cars and give the would-be-funny-lads so much to gag us with . . . Attorney Moe Slovin and bride back from their Cuban honeymooning

Those clever sedag-oing Bellar sisters B.anche and Audrey knowing naught of Depression's ating what with doing five-day and doubling in Maxine's night club in Montreal . . . Wonder if Revere's Sid Curtis is yearning for his raven-haired Audrey's return? . . . Shoeman Harry Silver, here from the Windy City, is still trying to find out if Hub's Newt Rosin had George Levi "under contract" when Levi score-kept during Rosin's cavorting of the visiting golfer on the Wollaston links over the week-end

'Member the Times?

Cary (Archie Leach to Hubites) Grant's love-life story in the August Movie Classic fails to mention his sweet romance with Dorothea "Dream Girl" Glover, who inspired the stunning, olive-skinned Englishman while he was playing here a couple of winters ago as Queenie Smith's leading man . . . We all know how he shadowed the beauteous blonde Doreen morning, noon and night . . . And no "there's love-in-your-eyes" cinema closeup that Cary turns out now could ever surpass those cute-cozy-corner cozings of (the then) Archie and Dorothea . . . In the Mayfair's nooks nightly after theater time . . . You'll see him soon as the "rich young man" opposite the emotionally gorgeous Marlene Dietrich in "Blonde Venus."

Paris Story Chevalier's Next

Los Angeles, July 22—Tahiti, with its tropical charm and cheap living, won't see Gouverneur and Ruth Morris for some weeks. Gouverneur has moved into the Paramount studios to write Maurice Chevalier's next picture and that's a task that isn't done in a day.

"The Pied Piper of Paris," a musical play with a real story background, is the subject of this next Chevalier opera. It gives the fascinating Maurice an opportunity to sing and do the delightful little comedy tricks that are so characteristic of him.

He returns the first of October to begin work and Mrs. Chevalier, who preceded him to Paris is coming back to Hollywood with him.

Are Warner Brothers sorry that they agreed to lend Kay Francis to Ernst Lubitsch? They have a part in "Silver Dollar" that should just suit her to the ground and now they are doing everything in their power to try to get her back. "The Honest Finder," the Lubitsch picture, went into production yesterday, and I doubt very much if Kay can be spared. The entire story of "Silver Dollar" has been rewritten, and Bette Davis is not the type for "Baby Doe" in the revised script which stars Edward Robinson and Kay Francis.

The Edmund Goulding resting reports ready to go to Europe as soon as Blondie of the Follies" Marion Davies' picture is finished. It isn't temperament that has kept Douglas Montgomery (Kent Douglass) from signing up with the several companies that have tendered him contracts. It's stage ambitions. He feels if he devotes himself exclusively to the screen in five years he would be through, while on the stage he would just be getting into his stride.

Writing Dialogue

Charles MacArthur husband of the one and only Helen Hayes, and rather well known on his own account, is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. He is preparing the dialogue for a motion picture to William Haines. Sam Woods, who occasionally writes when he isn't directing, is working on the story which of course he will direct. Before I get 100 letters calling me to account I'd better say, Oh, yes, indeed I know Charles MacArthur wrote "Front Page," "Lulu Belle," and other stage successes. Those who knew the charming couple of Park Lane symphony with Lynn in it, great ones. Mrs. Hughes will be missed by all Rita's friends whom she used to welcome to his home

Rare Feat by Camera

A paradoxical feat was accomplished in the filming of "The Washington Masquerade," in which Lionel Barrymore is starred and which opens on the screen at Loew's State today.

The camera filmed Barrymore in a scene and at the same time showed around two corners and picked up Karen Morley in another.

Hobart Bosworth Arrives Tomorrow; Has 500 Roles to His Credit

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Leave a bit of white space in your autograph book—Hobart Bosworth is coming to town! The pioneer movie actor, still after all his long years on the lots to be accounted a great screen figure is due tomorrow, to show himself on the RKO Keith stage and undoubtedly add lustre to the vaudeville bill.

Bosworth, as all the film fans know is a man of vast ability, and now one of the oldest of our character actors in his time he has played many parts, we are informed he has won or lost roles to his credit in the shadow dashes along. But before he began his 23 year career on the screen he had been long on the stage in a 47 years of his life have been given over to the latter. He was famous on the boards a generation ago, he served as leading man for such folk as Julia Marlowes, Mrs. Fiske, Henrietta Crossman and others.

Hobart Bosworth

Bosworth has had an adventurous career, for he never nailed himself to a humdrum existence. His wanderlust sent him stealing away from home at the age of 12; he went to sea. Strangely enough, the ship on which he made his first voyage, "Sovereign of the Seas," built in Boston and a famous whaler in her day, figured in a silent picture in which Hobart was starred. Veteran fans will recall how, during the making of the film, Bosworth was badly burned.

Bosworth was superb in the silents, and remains stellar in the talkies.

"Our Gang" Stars

Jacjuie Lyn, 3-year-old "wonder child," recently signed by Hal Roach to appear in his "Our Gang," learned to talk at the age of six months. Dickie Moore's life ambition was to be a garbage man, so he could wear white gloves, but since joining "Our Gang," he has decided to be a traffic cop.

10 MONTHS OF WORK WINS GUILD PRIZE

Working for more than 10 months on his Napoleonic coach model with unceasing effort and skill brought Mathew Moziek, 19-year-old Springfield youth first prize in the senior division of the entries in Massachusetts in the $75,000 competition of the Boston Evening American and Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild.

The prizes were announced by Mayor James M. Curley, who, in presenting the first prize to young Moziek, praised the workmanship displayed by the entrants. Moziek stated that his model was built at an expense of $75.

BEGAN WORK FEBRUARY

Moziek told the mayor that he had worked on his model since February when he entered the competition, one of 32 similar exhibits that the guild is holding all over the United States.

Moziek is a graduate of the Springfield Technical high school. He lives with his parents and two brothers at 439 Franklin st., Springfield.

As his prize Moziek will be presented with $100 in cash and a trip to Detroit where the national competition will be held. If he wins one of four places there he will be given a $5000 scholarship.

In the junior Division, William Langhammer, 17, of Shefford st, Springfield, won first place for the second consecutive year. He also receives $100 and a trip to Detroit for his effort.

The prizes were announced last night at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Department of Architecture, on Boylston st., where more than 150 models have been on display for the past week.

POMP AND GLORY

To the accompaniment of a constant buzz of admiring comment from visitors, Mayor Curley announced the prizes in the six divisions. The models are faithful reproductions, on a greatly reduced scale, of two famous coaches used by Napoleon. They reflect the pomp and splendor of royal equipages of a century ago.

The gracefully wrought bodies are lacquered a bright French blue, and are trimmed with gilded ornaments exactly as were Napoleon's own. Defiant eagles perch on top of the spiral rear corner posts, and gilt mountings of delicate design set off the body panels.

At the out-set of the year, each boy entering the competition was furnished free, by the Boston Evening American, with a set of plans and color plates giving detailed instructions on how to build the coach. The work involves a high degree of skill and perseverance on the part of the entrants.

AWARDS ARE LISTED

In the senior division second prize of $50 was won by Gaetano Bouchard of Park st., Stoneham.

Third prize and honorable mention went to Leif T. Steinberg of Sachem st., Springfield.

Jason French of West st., Arlington won $100 as second prize in the junior division and Frederick Crooks, Jr., of Barton rd., Medford, won third prize and honorable mention.

Wood Craft, Senior Division First, Elroy Field of Bellevue st, Lowell, $25; second, Leif T Steinberg, $15. Junior Division—First, F. C. Humphreys, of Garden st., West Roxbury, $25; second, Fred Crooks, Jr., $15.

Metal Craft, Senior Division First, Leif T Steinberg; second Elory Field, Junior Division—First, Fred Crook, Jr.; second, F. C Humphreys.

ACCIDENT RING SMASHED

Statistics dealing with the progress made in the task of smashing Massachusetts automobile accident claim rings were made public yesterday afternoon, and revealed that in Suffolk County alone 220 fewer suits for damages were filed in the first six months this year than for the same period in 1931. In Middlesex County 396 fewer claims were filed. In other counties throughout the state the decrease, if any, was not so marked.

Special significance attaches to the lessening of the number of cases in the courts of Suffolk and Middlesex, where fraud cases have most often been prosecuted.

So favorable has the record been in this State that casualty insurance companies who are backing the campaign are now considering plans to extend the system of fraud investigation to other cities and sections.

MODERATE RISE IS REGISTERED IN WALL ST.

New York, July 22—With rails providing the motive power and oils the fuel, the stock market in Wall st. negotiated another modest grade today, getting up close to the peak levels of June.

Announcement of the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval of the four-party Eastern trunkline merger, with only minor modifications of the executive's plan, had a beneficial effect upon the carrier securities generally and oils improved in response to first samples of first half earnings.

RAILS WORK UPWARD

Of the Eastern trunk lines, stocks Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania & Ohio made relatively the best progress, soon getting up a point or more. Delaware & Hudson, normally a wider mover, at the same time advanced more than 2. New York Central and Pennsylvania rose about ½ point.

Among the other rails, Union Pacific and Atchison gained a point or so.

The stock market pushed forward on wide lead of rails and oils to the best levels of July in the most active trading in several weeks.

The list turned dull in the late trading, however, and there was some recession from the best, but the late tone was strong, and net gains of 1 to 2 points were numerous.

The turnover approximated 1,400,000 shares.

U. S. Steel preferred rose more than 3 points, then reacted 1. American Telephone slipped back about a point, after a rise of 2%, which leads as Standard Gas of New Jersey and California, Nickel Plate, Lacakawanna and American Can gained about a point.

The way the market was able to push through its previous upper resistance levels of July was regarded as encouraging. The upturn took the general level, as measured by averages, up close to the peak of the early June rally, which greeted the formation of the Morgan-sponsored bond investing corporation.

DISCOUNTED IN ADVANCE

The advance received consideable help from the manner in which the list received second quarter earnings statements, leading to the conclusion that the less favorable exhibits had been discounted in advance in many cases.

The earnings report of Atlantic Refining for the second quarter and first half proved substantiation of advance estimates indicating that the improvement in gasoline prices had carried in industry out of the red. Atlantic Refining's net for the first half was $2.76 a share, of which $1.02 was earned in the second quarter.

Of the full-year 1931 the company showed only 19 cents a share on the stock. A number of advance statements are forthcoming, however. For instance, Johns-Manville showed a loss of $602,670 in the second quarter, a considerably smaller loss than in the first, but contrasting with net income of $715,857 in the second quarter of last year.

MEN WHO DO THINGS

This is G. Omahot Philzit, a constructive thinker if there ever was one, who is jumping up and down demanding that the Olympic Games Committee add a monkey wrench throw to the scheduled track and field events. "Now that the convention is over," says Mr. Philzit, "there are any number of well-trained Democrats who have practically nothing to do."

POLITICAL NOTE:

Red Plot Directed Against Mr. Frisby.

BY CONGRESSMAN FRISBY
Washington Monument

It is not often that I get mad, but I cannot refrain from protesting, with all my vigour, against the practice of radicals in the pay of hostile foreign governments who placed a rake in my back yard, knowing that I would step on the teeth and be smitten by the handle. To my many friends who will worry about my condition, I extend greetings and how'd you do yourself. Fortunately the blow struck me in a manner that only stimulated my thought, and even before arising and walking in circles, I had formulated a plan to discharge all mailmen and use the money thus saved to distribute among unemployed mailmen.

HOW IS YOUR MEMORY?

14

Name .....

13—Boston born and bred, this girl made a hit in the movies singing "Sing You Sinners." She appeared in the "Vanities," then RKO vaudeville.

15

Name .....

15—Incomparable song dramatist. Versatile in style, she sings everything from ballads to classics. Well known on the radio. Now in RKO vaudeville. Know her?

Come on, you Bostonians, of the three pictures printed today in the proper new vaudeville contest, two are of well-known Boston people. It ought to be a cinch for you to guess them, and the third has appeared in the Hub many times on RKO vaudeville stages.

This new vaudeville identification contest is now in its fifth day. Each day, for two weeks, the Boston Evening American will print three pictures of famous RKO vaudeville stars, with hints as to their identities. You fill in their names neatly and correctly, and have an opportunity of sharing in the $100 in prize money offered in addition to 50 tickets to RKO Keith's Theater.

The first half of the contest ends tomorrow night; take all your pictures (including tomorrow's) and mail them all together to the Vaudeville Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Your entries for this first week's batch must be postmarked no later than Monday midnight.

Prizes are awarded weekly. The first prize is $20 in cash each week, second prize $15 and third prize $10. The next 25 winners will each receive a ticket to RKO Keith's where seven acts of RKO Keith's vaudeville are on view. It's not too late to enter, and if you are missing any pictures, the contest started last Monday in the Boston Evening American.

HEARST PAPERS ADVOCATE

1—The five billion dollar loan to relieve unemployment and put billions of dollars into immediate circulation.

2—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

Manufacturers' Sales Tax of 5 Per Cent Salvation of Harassed Taxpayer

Only extreme optimists concede that the slipshod taxation program adopted at the session just ended will yield sufficient revenue to balance the national budget.

Therefore, let Congress and the nation at large turn their attention and thought toward the major "experiment in the sales tax" currently under way in the State of Mississippi.

The State Legislature there, against violent and organized opposition similar to that aroused over the proposal for a Federal sales tax, finally adopted a consumers' sales tax of two per cent, collected at retail. The tax has been in effect since May 1.

Calamity-howling and prognostications of serious repercussions to result from imposition of the sales tax were freely broadcast by its opponents. Mass meetings and parades of protest were held and proponents of the sales tax lampooned as impractical, even dangerous handlers of public funds and public policies.

A survey conducted by the Hearst newspapers, revealing the above results in Mississippi, also disclosed that individual taxpayers "first treated the contribution (taxes) as a joke and then as a part of the routine of living."

In other words, the sales tax has NOT become unpopular.

The Mississippi tax, however, is a shop tax or consumers' tax. Therefore, it is THE LEAST POPULAR FORM OF SALES TAX.

It is not like the Canadian sales tax which our Federal Government proposed adopting. This is the MANUFACTURERS' tax, levied ONLY ONCE—at the source of production.

In time, it probably would be designated as it is in Canada —a PAINLESS tax.

Instead of thoughtless, confiscatory and harmful taxes now levied, the Federal Government should adopt, not the Mississippi Consumers' Sales Tax, but a REAL manufacturers' sales tax of FIVE PER CENT. This would bring in huge revenue.

It would solve the budget problem.

It would end the farcical present taxation policy which drives funds OUT OF productive, employment-giving industry into tax-exempt bonds.

It would distribute the tax burden FAIRLY.

Let's have the MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX.

A Mother in the Hospital

Forever fretting through the night when you should lie asleep.
They tell me it is rest you need and still you toss about.
"My little boy is three years old and likes to scamper out,
And will they keep an eye on him with so much danger near?
It's that which worries me," said she, "while I am lying here.

"And will they starch his little shirts and keep him clean and neat?
And will they keep away from him the things he mustn't eat?
The doctors shake their heads at me and tell me I must rest.
But Sunday morning will they think to dress him in his best?

But have they found the little drawer where all his clothes are kept?
And do they dust and sweep the rooms and shine the glassware, too?
And have they changed the linen on the beds as I would do?"
'Tis well enough for men to say put every fear to rout,
But mothers have so many things at night to think about.

Civilization!

BUT WE DO FLOG, BURN AND TORTURE the mentally diseased, the socially unfortunate and those suspected of crime.

In Nassau County, New York, we beat and torture crime suspects to the death.

ENFORCEMENT
F. OPPER

For more than twelve years a minority of professional Drys has controlled enough timid, weak-kneed, backboneless politicians in Congress to run this country in a high-handed manner.

This minority inflicted several outrageous "enforcement" laws on the land; hand picked judges, controlled political conventions, dictated nominations; all manner of invasions of the constitutional rights of citizens were upheld by this minority in the sacred name of Prohibition; no sum of public moneys was too great to spend in "enforcement."

Early in the Volstead era a number of well-meaning citizens turned to Prohibition as a real step in the march to Temperance and HAVE REGRETTED IT EVER SINCE.

The TRAGIC FAILURE of the sumptuary Dry laws turned the sane, sober majority of citizens, believers in True Temperance, against Prohibition. The professional Drys lost the support of their most influential backers and the dollars of their heaviest contributors.

PROHIBITION IS DOOMED and the Prohibitionists know it. The universal demand is for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Well may the Prohibitionists cry, as did the Southern preacher in the comic song of decades ago:

"Oh, Lord, if You can't help me, please don't help that bear!"

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, July 22—Thoughts while strolling: Billy B. Van, ex-minstrel, in town with butter and honey gifts for the Friars. What a grand crowd the minstrels spawned—Lew Dockstader, Neil O'Brien, Honey Boy Evans and Willis P. Sweatman. Charles Francis Coe is now radio's white-haired boy.

That group in front of the Elks,' Nicholas Murray Butler is an Elk, by the way. Which should set Mencken off in a hoot. Malcolm Douglas, theater manager, who contributes juvenile jingles to the St. Nicholas. Chet Shafer and Berton Braley bear a resemblance. Madge Kennedy's tight, mirthless smile.

Somehow, I'd like to see Katherine Dale Owen let down her hair. Bert Wheeler's crying voice. That "Fire Sale" on 41st in its fifth year. Beverly Sitgreaves is easy on the eye. City papers haven't that fragrant odor of the country weekly. Ann Sell always loo's as though she'd just stepped off a Paris boat.

The ugly, squat row of frame buildings directly below the Metropolitan. A part of the Wendel estate. The self-effacing H. P. Burton of the magazines. Nobody can look more aloof than Julia Hoyt. One word description of Harold Ross—gangling. And Fay Marbe suggests a huge ostrich fan.

Pepy de Albrew is a symphony in brown. One of my favorite people—Frank Buck. Those eye-filling pastry show windows. They laughed the best pastry of all out of existence—the cream puff. W. O. McGeehan, a San Francisco boy, who made good in the city. They call Frank McIntyre "Toots"—the big stiff.

Ambling around town, in a sort of excelsior trudge, one sees now and then a hero to thousands of shorthand students. He is John Robert Gregg, inventor of the shorthand bearing his name. Large, curly haired, he wears a gardenia in his lapel. Aside from his invention, he is a wealthy publisher of school books, and spends his life knocking about the world. Life seems to melt in his mouth like butter.

Another cameo out of the 90's is Jake Wolf, proprietor of the dead and gone Casino. He ruled the Thespic temple in the days of Lillian Russell and Edna May. Now that George F. Baker, the banker, is gone, he is the last to wear side-wheel whiskers and detachable barrel cuffs.

A gentleman, unable to decipher my red-inked postcard reply to a letter, forwards the story about Henry Ward Beecher. A manuscript of his was sent back by a printer's boy for unscrambling. Mr. Beecher puzzled a while and, returning it, sighed: "Son, when I wrote this theme, only God and I knew what I was writing. As things are now, only God knows."

A highly embossed letter head, proclaiming a "Decorateur Artiste—Paris, Venice, Egypte" and a Park avenue address, announces an exhibit of artistically created, individualistic, miniature bars "to blend with the personality of the bonvivant." I have beheld a number in their clean sharpness here and there and they include every precaution of modern civilization's emergency. One, indeed, has a swivel, cushioned bar chair that may be adjusted into a reclining position for a tonsor's ministrations before going to the office. A personable barber is maintained by the bachelor host.

Curley Acts to Punish Crooks and Swindlers Supported by Taxpayers

Hard-pressed taxpayers of Boston—and in its suburbs—are now revealed as actually supporting known crooks, parole violators, and cheats and frauds of all sorts.

The Boston Evening American in co-operation with the city relief department, already has bared in its expose of public relief racketeering enough to prove that the taxpayers are being mercilessly swindled; that determined action is needed to prevent further theft of thousands of dollars every week from the public treasury.

Mayor Curley has stepped into the situation quickly and decisively, at a time when the whole matter threatens to get completely out of control. He has ordered a thorough examination of every application, punishment for the swindlers, and restitution of the fraudulently-obtained money wherever possible.

The job is a big one. More than 25,000 persons are drawing money every week from the treasury; to challenge the honesty of every application is a task, at this late day, almost beyond the facilities of the relief department.

But the thing must be done. Relief is being handed out in Boston alone at the rate of a million dollars a month, and is constantly growing. No one can say just what proportion of this huge sum is going to bootleggers, parole violators, plain bums, to men and women with jobs, automobiles and bank accounts. The great majority of the aid receivers doubtless are honest victims of misfortune beyond their control. But included in the appallingly long list of dole getters are many swindlers, to whom public relief has opened up the sweetest graft, the easiest loot in their careers.

Not only are these thievish persons swindling the taxpayers; they are actually robbing the really hungry and suffering poor. Relief funds are stretched to the limit now, and legitimate demands are piling up at an alarming rate every day. Every dollar stolen by the swindlers means a dollar less for those who desperately need help.

The Evening American has learned that the police have a list of known crooks and thieves, bootleggers, wife beaters, and parole violators, who have been arrested in recent months with dole cards in their possession. Here we have a sickening picture. The decent people of Boston, thousands of them hard pressed to pay their taxes and save their homes, are actually supporting by their taxes law breakers and criminals of all sorts and degrees. Public dole for known crooks, many of whom have been caught in new depredations, while being supported in ease and comfort from the city treasury, certainly is a startling manifestation of human depravity, even in these days of wholesale rackets and racketeering.

Police department members have been contributing of their salaries regularly to the relief funds of the city. This is as it should be. The men have given freely and gladly. But one wonders what their reaction must be when they risk their lives in battling crooks, burglars and rum runners, only to find that the men they pick up in many cases are being supported by city funds taken in part from their all-too-small police wages!

It is difficult to believe that such a condition could come about in this year of 1932. Yet, here it is. The Evening American prints only the facts as it has found them.

The Evening American compliments Mayor Curley upon his announced determination to clean up this situation, and thanks him and his department heads for their co-operation in this newspaper's efforts to bring into the open the distressing conditions which have grown up in the distribution of the many millions of dollars by the city.

The police department can and should be of great help to the Mayor in rounding up the swindlers and the unworthy. The police lists should be made available to the City Hall at once. In turn, every applicant for city aid should be investigated by the police, not only as a matter of public policy, but as an economy move.

A Friendly Warning

By Claude G. Bowers

John N. Garner, returning to his home in Texas, met a series of ovations from the Texans at every station, and the train was an hour and a half later in reaching Dallas. His has been a unique career, for he has never been a "barnstormer."

Since his election to the House he has never found it necessary to electioneer. Even the campaigns did not find him on the stump. His speeches have been confined to the House, and it is because of the character of these speeches that he is now Speaker.

No man ever rises to the speakership who is not a man of personality, character and power. In no body does merit count so much.

Now, after a short rest, he will take the stump; and he will speak on the stump as he has spoken in the House—straight out. He will be a hard hitter, and will use the language that both the man in the corn row and the man in the counting room can understand. He will be a popular campaigner.

The snipers have been firing their pop-guns at him from a safe distance, but none of them will be eager to come within range of his fire. The attacks upon him have been of Wall Street inspiration. In due time he will meet these attacks without mincing words. Thus at Dallas he said:

"I want to convince every honest man and woman in the United States that the power of government should be taken away from those who administer it for the benefit of the privileged few."

That is his brand of "demagogy." It is the "demagogy" of Jefferson, and the "demagogy" of Jackson and Wilson, the "demagogy" of Americanism. There is not an intelligent child in the country who will not know what he means.

But he does not mean that privilege shall be shifted from one class to another—for that would not be Americanism, either. Thus he sets that he wants power put in the hands of those who will administer it "for the benefit of the American people as a whole."

So do the people.

They know that throughout the regime of Mellon, government has been administered for the benefit of a select clientele, and that the fruit has been rotten.

If Wall Street does not want to get into the campaign it will stay out; but the moment it injects itself one inch into the fight it will be in a mile, and it will not be able to get out.

Under existing conditions it will be wise to tend to its knitting, let politics alone, and walk humbly with its gains. For there never has been a time when it was less loved or trusted.

Wall Street is not an asset for any party this year. It would be a heavy liability. When the element it represents conceived the brilliant notion that it could turn the great mass of the people, including the average business man, against Roosevelt and Garner by denouncing the phrase "the forgotten man," and Garner's plan of relief, it revealed an astonishing ignorance of national psychology.

It attacked Garner; and Garner has made his reply; and his reply called forth shouts that shook the heavens in Texas. It would do the same in New York City.
